Klan Candidate Admits Defeat In Texas

JUDGE ROBERTSON
CONCEDES VICTORY
OF MRS. FERGUSON

Going to Take Bull by Horns and Show World
She Can Make Creditable
Governor, She Says.

SPELLS DOWNFALL
OF KLAN IN TEXAS

Total Vote Will Be Much Heavier Than in First State Primary Held
Upon July 26.

Dallas, Texas, August 24.—Judge Felix D. Robertson, backed by the Ku Klux Klan for the democratic gubernatorial nomination in the runoff primary held here Saturday, late Sunday conceded victory to Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, wife of former Governor James E. Ferguson.

Judge Robertson's message said: "I sincerely congratulate you on your victory."

As the democratic nomination in this state is considered equivalent to election, Texas is practically assured of having a woman as governor—the first in the history of the United States.

Majority Is 77,200.

In the latest returns, 227 counties, including 59 complete out of the state's 252, gave Mrs. Ferguson 332,- 936; Robertson, 315,710. The outstanding vote is largely in agricultural sections, where these returns are expected to give her the majority that she predicted she would have—125,- 000 votes.

The vote in the first primary on July 26, when there were seven candidates, was approximately 715,000.

When told of her victory at her home in Temple, Texas, Mrs. Ferguson said:

"There never was any doubt in my mind but what I would win. The people of Texas are tired of Klan politics and misrepresentation. It was that issue that gave me the election."

"I am going to give Texas the best of my efforts to make them a true
governor and execute the trust placed in me."

Show World She Can.

"There are many things to do, but I am going to take the bull by the horns and show the world that a woman can fill the governor's chair
with credit to her and the state."

"I won't be satisfied unless I receive 100,000 votes majority. I am looking for the greatest democratic victory in the state's history. That's how much confidence I have in the good judgment of the people who have experienced two years of Klan political direction."

I am not surprised at the trend of the vote. It is the direct result of,
and indication that the Klan is on the downhill grade in Texas."

Rest Several Days.

Mrs. Ferguson said she would return to her home in Temple, Texas.

How the Family Can Start Every Day Right

There is one way for a fellow and his family
in Atlanta to start the day right.

If he and his folks begin early with a hot breakfast and The Atlanta Constitution, they will be sure of a timely start, plenty of nourishment till lunch and a true slant on world affairs and local happenings.

This is the way that hundreds of thousands of readers begin their days—and more and more constantly are finding that almost as important as their breakfast is their copy of The Constitution, which—fifteen years before any other Atlanta newspaper was in existence—began telling the world about Atlanta and Atlanta about the world. By doing so truthfully, The Constitution has come to be recognized throughout more than half a century as the certain source of news and advertising information that is accurately gathered from sources that are honest.

Cleared in Two Hours.

Lutcher, La., August 24.—A twister demolished the old St. Philip's church at Vacherie, La., just across the Mississippi river from here, this afternoon during the progress of a church festival. Eight persons were killed, nine seriously injured and a score hurt.

The building, which had been abandoned as a church, but used as a school and for church festivals, was flattened, burying those within its walls, while other buildings in the vicinity escaped without serious damage.

It all happened during a period of minutes and a scene of gale was transformed into one of tragedy.
Those attending the affair who took refuge in the new church and were unhurt immediately set themselves to the task of digging out their friends from under the pile of twisted timbers.

Within two hours, the wreckage had been cleared. The bodies of the dead were removed and assistance given to the injured. Hurried calls for help brought physicians and aid
from the surrounding communities.
The more seriously injured were sent to New Orleans.

The dead and injured were among the most prominent citizens of this section.

Funeral services for all the victims will be held tomorrow from the new St. Philip's church.

TIGERS ACTIVE SUNDAY 58 Unfortunate Victims Invited to Police Station.

Bootleggers did a thriving business
in Atlanta on Sunday.

Out of several hundred box calls during the day, patrol officers answered 58 for the specific purpose of returning drunks to the police station.

Veteran patrolmen declared that this was the largest number of persons arrested for drunkenness in several years.

Partially-filled pint bottles were found on the hip in most of the cases and the offenders probably will be bound over to the state courts on liquor charges in addition to being fined by the recorder.

POSITION TO TAKE ON KLAN QUESTION
BOTHERS COOLIDGE

Decision Means Much Not Only To Himself, But To Other G. O. P. Candidates This Year.

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER.

Washington, August 24.—Whether to trounce the Ku Klux Klan, as Davis and La Follette have done, is about the toughest problem Coolidge has tussled with since he became president, because his decision means so much to the political and, therefore, the personal fortunes of many fellow republicans who happen to be candidates for office this year.

Looked at purely from the angle of political expediency, there are powerful considerations in favor of both denunciation and silence. Coolidge's course may mean the success or the failure of the republican national and state tickets in states like Indiana, Oklahoma and Missouri. It will be a tremendous factor in states like New York and New Jersey and may even cause an upset in staid old Maine,
which is now in the heat of a state campaign.

Both Hurt and Help.

Any course Coolidge follows will hurt him and the ticket in some sections and help in others.

The two big reverses which the Klan has met within the month—the nomination of Jack Walton as the democratic candidate for senator in Oklahoma and Mrs. Ferguson's nomination for governor of Texas—have convinced many eastern politicians
that the spell of the Klan is broken.

But whether this is true or not,
any candidate who offends the Klan
is inviting the hostility of a large group of voters. Republicans undoubtedly would have been better raised had the question never been raised. They are inclined to regard the Davis challenge as a political trick designed to put the president in a hole.

It is hardly to be expected that democrats and La Follette independents
will be content with the answer made

CENTRAL BAPTIST
MEMBERS SPLIT

Followers of Rev. W. L.
Hambrick, Former Pastor, Announce Intention of Starting New Church.

More than 200 members of the Central Baptist church, who withdrew their membership, following resignation of Rev. W. L. Hambrick, pastor, because of internal friction, met Sunday in an improvised auditorium
at the Central Curb market and held three services during the day, which included Sunday school and two prayer hours.

Rev. H. W. Morris, Baptist evangelist, of Atlanta, filled the pulpit and seven teachers who formerly were affiliated with the old church, brought their Sunday school classes, en masse,
to the auditorium.

Former deacons who are heading the movement in behalf of Mr. Hambrick declared that on his return to Atlanta, which is expected within the week, a new church will be organized. They predicted that more than two-thirds of the members will follow the former pastor.

A. S. Todd, senior deacon of Central church, Sunday night declared to a Constitution reporter that "Hambrick never resigned, he was fired."

Members of the new movement declined Mr. Hambrick was forced to quit, and declared that Mr. Todd was antagonistic to their plans because the Hambrick supporters are demanding return to them of about $2,000 paid into the church treasury.

The Central church has called Rev.
Luke Rader, of Chicago, to succeed
Mr. Hambrick.

His Administration, and

Resignation of Alderman J. R.
Bachman as chairman of city council finance committee was demanded by Mayor Walter Sims in a public statement Sunday night following an announcement by Alderman Bachman Saturday that he would accept the chairmanship and active management of former Mayor Key's campaign against Mayor Sims. He had served as finance committee chairman since appointment by the mayor in January.

Alderman Bachman, informed of the demand, indicated that he would tender his resignation as soon as the mayor presented the demand to him personally, asserting that the chairmanship "being the gift of the mayor,
it is within the province of the mayor to take it away."

Mayor Sims based his move against Bachman on the ground that the success or failure of the present administration's policies depends largely on the loyalty and fidelity, as well as the sound business judgment, of the chairman of the committee which to a large extent has the guidance of the finances of the government.

Berlin, August 24.—Professor Kas-imir Romundt Graff, of the Hamburg astronomical observatory, has announced he observed the various canals of Mars discovered by the Italian astronomer, Giovanni Schiparelli, and also land areas which he regards as proving the existence of continents on the planet.

Black formations, which the professor believes to be seas, also were observed, as were yellow spots of an obscure nature.

Won't Express Opinion.

London, August 24.—In response to an inquiry from the Associated Press, William Marconi today sent the following dispatch by radio from on board his yacht, the Electra, lying off Lisbon, Portugal:

"I regret that I am unable to express any definite opinions with regard to the attempts to establish communication with Mars. I do not consider that the tests carried out
during the nearest proximity of Mars
to the earth have any greater chance of success than during other times."

"Miss Atlanta" To Launch
PLAYS VIOLIN SOLO FOR BIBLE CLASS
Career on Stage Tonight

"Miss Atlanta" is to launch tonight at the Lyric theater into the stage career which she has declared to be her life-long ambition, and one which her designation as Atlanta's representative in the national beauty pageant at Atlantic City next week
bids fair to make possible for her.

Preparation for her premiere appearance tonight occupied most of a busy Sunday for pretty 17-year-old Estelle Bradley, winner of the title
"Miss Atlanta" in The Constitution's
beauty tournament.

Bright and early Sunday morning
she began studying her part, then motored from her Atlanta avenue home to the First Baptist church to play a violin solo, then made final arrangements by telegraph for a luxurious suite of rooms at the Marlborough-Blenheim hotel at Atlantic City for next week.

Sunday afternoon she rehearsed
at the Lyric theater with the full Lyric company in her part in "Madeline of the Movies," which opens tonight for a week's run.

COOLIDGE INVITES DAWES FOR VISIT

G. O. P. Vice Presidential Nominee To See President Few Hours Today
for Conference.

Plymouth, Vt., August 24.—President Coolidge today invited Charles G. Dawes, his running mate, to visit him here on his return from Maine, and arrangements were made for a conference tomorrow afternoon.

The visit of the vice presidential nominee, who spoke yesterday in Augusta, Maine, is planned, it was said,
with a dual purpose—to permit a conference on the political situation
and to allow Mr. Coolidge an opportunity to extend the courtesies of New England.

The invitation was extended to Mr.
Dawes by telephone this morning.
Meanwhile, the president today maintained his silence on recent developments in the campaign, including the decision yesterday by Mr. Dawes and that of the day before by John W.
Davis, democratic nominee, on the Ku Klux Klan.

Both Dawes and Davis announced opposition to the Klan, mentioning it
by name for the first time.

Say Only Few Hours.

Under present plans, Mr. Dawes will be a guest of the president and Mrs. Coolidge at the luncheon tomorrow in the home here of Mr. Cool-idge's father, where he is spending a vacation. It is understood Mr. Dawes expects to leave again tomorrow night
on his return to Chicago.

Attendance at the one-room union
church and a visit with James M.
Lucy, shoemaker of Northampton,
Mass., and close friend of the president, comprised today's program of Mr. Coolidge. It was another day of quiet, which has marked almost every day of his vacation.

Mr. Lucy arrived here just after dinner, received a happy welcome
from the president and visited with him for about 45 minutes. Lucy is a candidate for the Massachusetts assembly and said he came up to tell the president what the latter had written him just after entering the house.

Prince of Wales
Is Leading Life of Hunted Animal

Spectators on Steamer Rush
After Him, But He Eludes
Most of Them.

Aboard S. S. Berengaria, August 24.—On this steamer, which is crowded to the bulwarks with passengers falling over each other to see him, the Prince of Wales is leading the life of a hunted animal.

Whenever his highness leaves for a moment the sanctity of his private suite there is a rush of would-be spectators. Fond mothers, with high aspirations for their doting daughters, seize their charges by the hand
and dash to the hunt.

But Wales, so far at least, has been able to take care of himself. He uses circumspection in choosing the routes for his walk on the deck, and spends much of his time on the captain's bridge, where others dare not pursue.

The young man caused more than a sensation Saturday night. The rumor that he would dance had gone before him to the ballroom. Scores of girls, both British and American, sat
expectantly in a semicircle in the ballroom, eyes glued on the door. The

MAN IS KILLED
BY SON-IN-LAW

Sparta Man Shot in Home
Following Family Quarrel; Marion Sparks Held for Murder.

Sparta, Ga., August 24.—T. E.
Frazier, 50, prominent farmer of Hancock county, was shot to death
at his home this afternoon after a quarrel with his son-in-law, Marion Sparks, 25.

Sparks had come to Mr. Frazier's home to see his wife, from whom he had been separated for two months.
They had been talking for a few minutes when Frazier turned on his heel and walked away. Witnesses say that Sparks opened fire, shooting his father-in-law twice.

Frazier dropped to the ground and died in a few minutes. Sparks jumped into an automobile and fled to the home of his father, John E. Sparks, prominent farmer of Washington county, just over the line from Hancock county.

After telling his story to his father,
the latter delivered Sparks to the Washington county jail at Sanders-ville tonight, where he is being held for Hancock county officers on a charge of murder.

Sheriff J. M. Jackson, of this county, informed the Washington county sheriff that the arrangement was satisfactory, as Washington county has a better jail.

Sparks is said to have made several efforts lately to persuade his wife to return to him. This afternoon, just before the shooting, he conversed with her in the Frazier home, and then went outside and talked with Frazier.

DECLARES DAWES
STRADDLED KLAN

G. O. P. Nominee, While Mildly Criticising Order, Condoned It, Says Judge
Moore.

New York, August 24.—Charging General Charles G. Dawes with attempting to "straddle a vital issue," Edward H. Moore, democratic national committeeman from Ohio, issued a statement here Sunday attacking the republican vice presidential candidate for his references to the Ku Klux Klan in his speech Saturday at Augusta, Maine.

John W. Davis declined to comment on Dawes' speech.

Moore described the general as a "hesitant, swivel-chair hero, instead of the fighting Hell'n' Mar Dawes he is supposed to be."

"The Dawes speech," said Moore, "is a rich addition to humor in American politics. He successfully exposed the myth of the strong, silent Cal and the courageous Charles."

"In apologizing for the Klan, General Dawes cited the situation in Herrin, Illinois, where prohibition was not being enforced by the constitutional authorities, and where the Klan undertook to take the law into its own hands. In upholding the action of the Klan in Herin, where Mr.
Dawes said its activities as a law enforcement agency resulted in bloodshed, the republican vice presidential candidate overlooked the fact that district attorneys, United States
marshals and prohibition agents."

Southern Train Runs Three Miles Without Engineer

Guy Hancock, of Atlanta, Oldest Freight Engineer,
Found Dead by Track.

Macon, Ga., August 24.—A Southern railway freight train ran for three miles tonight on the main line between Macon and Atlanta without an engineer at the throttle.

When the fireman, Gib Adams,
negro, discovered that the engineer was not blowing for crossings, he investigated and found the engineer's seat vacant.

The fireman brought the train to a stop. The crew went back along the railroad track three miles and found the lifeless body of the engineer, Guy N. Hancock, of Atlanta, on the ground. The only injury noticeable was a broken leg, and it is believed that he died of heart failure,
and fell out of the cab while the train was running 30 miles an hour.

Hancock was the oldest freight engineer on the Macon-Atlanta division of the Southern railway.

Engineer for 18 Years.

Mr. Hancock, who was only 43 years old, was the oldest freight engineer in point of service on the

Fog Continues To Impede Search, But Weather Im-

Requested of U. S.

Washington, August 24.—Successful completion of the flight from Fredericksdal to Ivigtut, the last stop before the hop to the North American mainland, was reported to the army air service Sunday by Lieutenant Smith.

The hop was made Sunday morning at 10:50. The planes were in the air two hours and fifteen minutes.
Smith reported that the pontoon of his plane was damaged by ice Saturday night despite the vigilance
of natives employed to keep floating ice from reaching the planes. The damage apparently was not serious.
Lieutenant Smith did not indicate when he will be ready to make the next jump, explaining that he intended to change both motors and overhaul the planes thoroughly before proceeding.

Message of Smith.

Lieutenant Smith's message said:
"Left Fredericksdal 10:50; landed Ivigtut. Two hours, 15 minutes flying. Number 2 pontoon damaged by ice last night even though guarded by island of Falk sailors and natives employed to keep ice away.
Will change both motors and go over thoroughly before attempting to continue."

Meanwhile, more help was asked in the search for the lost Italian flier, Lieutenant Locatelli. A radio from the Milwaukee stated that fog continued to impede the hunt, but that the weather was improving. It was suggested that the supply ship Brazos
and the Detroit be detailed to assist,
as the Raleigh must abandon the search Sunday night to proceed to Bay Island, its next station in the flight.

Message From Milwaukee.

The radio message from the Milwaukee, dated Saturday, said:
"Fliers held by Fredericksdal fog.
Danish advises sending out search parties and doing utmost to locate Locatelli."

"Fog impeded search by Raleigh and Richmond. They searched only 4,200 miles today. Weather improving. Raleigh must proceed to Bay Island evening of twenty-fourth.
Richmond search for fuel will not permit. Detail of Brazos and Detroit appreciated. May request commander

lutely necessary."

The airman will prepare now for their 573-mile journey to Indian Harbor, Labrador, which will put them back on the American continent and eliminate the last dangerous water hazard. With three intermediate stops, they will then proceed down the coast to Boston.

ITALIANS INTERESTED IN LOCATELLI'S FATE.
Rome, August 24.—The entire nation is expressing the keenest anxiety over the fate of Lieutenant Locatelli, who has been missing since he started with the American fliers on a flight from Iceland to Greenland last week.

Everywhere the people of Italy have been watching for Locatelli's flight from Pisa and were hoping for a successful termination of it on the American continent.

Gratitude universally is felt for the energetic efforts of the American navy in its search for Locatelli. The feeling prevails that the action of the Americans is another expression of the sympathy and friendship which unites the American and Italian peoples.

Experts are of the opinion that the durability of Locatelli's machine and the quality of the provisions and fuel, he carried with him warrant the hope that he yet will be found.

by Dawes at Augusta. Coolidge is certain to be heckled until he breaks his silence.

Forced Coolidge Hand.
In a way, Dawes was forced the president's hand, for it is now more difficult for Coolidge to remain silent, when even his own running mate has followed the lead of Davis and La Follette. And Coolidge, if he says anything, must conform to the view expressed by his partner on the ticket. It would be unthinkable for him and Dawes to be out of harmony on this question.

But here are some of the tangled state situations that Coolidge must take into consideration.

In Texas, the republicans will choose a gubernatorial candidate this week to run against Mrs. Ferguson, the anti-klan democrat. There will be a bitter fight between National Commitmen, R. B. Greager, anti-klan republican, and those who will want to put up a candidate sympathetic to the secret order so that the klan opposition to Mrs. Ferguson will have some logical place to go.

How Oklahoma Affected.
In Oklahoma, the democratic senatorial candidate, Jack Walton, is running on an anti-klan ticket. Pine, the republican senatorial candidate, is a klan inductor. With their narrow margin in the senate, the republicans have no seeds to throw away. A klan denunciation by Coolidge would gain much benefit from it.

In Kansas, Paulsen, the republican nominee for governor, is said to have had klan support.

In Missouri, normally evenly balanced, there is a tremendous foreign and negro vote, which will be reluctant to support a ticket it believes is friendly toward the klan.

Situation In Indiana.
In Indiana, the republican organization is regarded as klan controlled, yet an anti-klan ticket. Pine, the republican senatorial candidate, is a klan inductor. With their narrow margin in the senate, the republicans have no seeds to throw away. A klan denunciation by Coolidge would gain much benefit from it.

In Maine, Pattingall, the democratic candidate for governor, is running on a klan ticket. Pine, the republican senatorial candidate, is a klan inductor. With their narrow margin in the senate, the republicans have no seeds to throw away. A klan denunciation by Coolidge would gain much benefit from it.

These are some of the political aspects of the problem. But those who know Coolidge do not believe that he will decide the question solely on those considerations. He will also consider the questions of moral principle involved, whether the klan is an institution for good or evil, and whether a president of the United States can justly promote an organization which includes thousands of patriotic citizens.

the success or failure of the policies I am endeavoring to put into effect cannot be attributed to him," Mayor Sims asserted.

Mayor Reviews Relations.
The mayor reviewed his political and official relations with Bachman briefly and especially charged him with running counter to the city administration's policies on important financial matters, especially in preparation of the January apportionment sheet which the mayor vetoed on the ground that it did not provide for building the Girls' High school. He also quoted comparative figures on the city's present financial situation and the financial situation during the Key administration.

The mayor's attack on Key and Bachman, coming as it did on the eve of the close at noon today of the entry book for candidates subject to the September 24 primary, presaged one of the bitterest city political campaigns that has developed in many years, according to veteran political observers.

Entries Close Today.
The entries up through Saturday night had disclosed only one threatened contest in all the 25 that are to be decided at the primary. For all the others, where a contest had developed, the candidates were paired off in the entry book.

BACHMAN IS ASKED BY SIMS TO QUIT

Bachman of intending to launch an obstructionist movement on the floor of council against the administration's plan of financing the public schools. Mr. Bachman, as chairman of the finance committee, had sponsored in council the three-way school finance plan, involving repeals of improvement appropriations, increased water rate and a special tax levy of 10 cents on the $100. Mayor Sims approved the first two parts of the plan, but negotiated a loan which made the tax unnecessary.

The alderman called the obstructionist charges "unjustified conjecture."

"In common fairness to the present administration, he should at least resign as chairman of the most important committee of council so that

Last year the voter was permitted to register in city, county and state elections at the court house, but under a charter amendment approved by the 1923 assembly, the city registration place was moved at the first of this year to city hall.

More than 20,000 Atlantans had registered up through Saturday afternoon.

Mayor Sims' Statement.
Mayor Sims' statement follows: "To the people of Atlanta: I was not surprised to see in Sunday's papers that J. R. Bachman was supporting my opponent in the mayoralty contest."

"I have stated several times that it is the same political ring that fought me two years ago that is fighting me now, but it is much weaker than it was then, and hundreds of people who voted against me then are for me today. There are some who were against me then and are still against me. Mr. Bachman is one of them. He fought me two years ago and I knew it. About two months ago he came to my office and urged me to run for re-election, stating that I had given the people of Atlanta one of the best business administrations he had ever known and even after Mr. Key had announced for mayor he stated to me that he was for me and that while Mr. Key had sent for him to come to his office, he had not gone and was not going, and that it would be a calamity for Mr. Key to be elected mayor."

"I am told that he has made this same statement to others. This is the way he felt two weeks ago when he talked with me about the matter."

"About six weeks ago Mr. Bachman attended a luncheon given by a well-known civic organization, and while I was not present, I am informed that he paid me a beautiful tribute as to the manner in which the affairs of the city had been handled and especially the financial condition of the treasury, which he stated was largely due to the good management of the mayor."

"I heard of this compliment, and when I saw Mr. Bachman I thanked him for it."

"I am relating these facts to show that Mr. Bachman was not a supporter of mine two years ago and so far as his support politically is concerned, I have not lost anything, for he was never for me when I was running for office, and needed his help."

"Mr. Bachman states in his announcement as campaign manager for Mr. Key, a man whom he has publicly announced it would be a calamity to elect, that tax burdens have increased in the past two years. He failed to tell you, however, that I had vetoed practically every increase in expenses, and that I vetoed the finance act which he, as chairman, prepared."

"About two months ago, Mr. Bachman and myself met with the members of the clearing-house association in an effort to secure for the school department with which to operate the schools from September to January, and I am sure those who were present will recall his words of endorsement of my record as mayor and also his attitude toward the school department."

Increase In Water Rates.
"Mr. Bachman failed to tell the people that he, as chairman of the water committee, led the fight for an increase in water rates. He does say that the results could not have been different had Mr. Key or even himself been mayor, but at the same time tries to leave the impression explain every act of mine as mayor of this city.

"It is a custom to give the mayor a second term. My opponent had it. I have an abiding faith in the fairness of the people of Atlanta and will be able to show that it is not so much the office of mayor that my opponent wants to fill as another office which my opponent has promised to a certain individual."

"No one in council has been in better position this year to cut expenses and lower cost of government than the manager of my opponent in this campaign, and while I have been disappointed in him both from a standpoint of a man of business judgment and a man of loyalty and fidelity, I feel that it is never too late to at least endeavor to make amends and that as manager of an opponent he is if loyal to him, in a sense honest to my administration and in common fairness to the present administration he should at least resign as chairman of the most important committee in council, a committee that has the guidance to a large extent of the finances of the government, so that the success or failure of the policies I am endeavoring to put into effect cannot be attributed to him, and so that he can as little as possible obstruct the support of the schools, which, I am informed, he has made known his purpose to do on the floor of council."

Respectfully,
"WALTER A. SIMS,
"Mayor of Atlanta."

Big German Air Liner For U. S. To Make 1st Trip Wednesday

Friedrichshafen, Germany, August 24.—When the airliner ZH-3, which is being completed for the United States government, goes on her first trial voyage next Wednesday, the newspaper writers and photographers gathered here are going to make sure they remain on land.

The Zeppelin engineers have announced that any stowaways found on board would be given parachutes and invited to step out into the ether. This put a quietus on a plot the newspapermen were hatching to go along on the initial trip, over the picturesque Algean district.

Later test flights probably will take the great air vessel on a tour circling the Rhineland, Prussia, Bavaria and Wurtemberg.

It is reported Sunday that France has given permission for the ship to be flown over that country, when the time arrives for its flight across the ocean to America. This will shorten the route.

Details of the finishing touches of the ship are being jealously guarded. Even officials of the company must be equipped with a secret pass before they enter the enclosure. Smokers are barred from the vicinity because of the danger of an explosion. Preliminary tests to the actual taking-off were held Sunday and will continue Monday and Tuesday. These include trials of the ship's equilibrium, responsibility to ascending controls and mechanical details. The motors have been installed but are not connected yet to the driving mechanism.

Salvage Wrecked Engine.
Waycross, Ga., August 24.—(Special.)—The railway shops here have received engine No. 1027, which recently was raised from the Cooper river near Charleston, S. C. This engine made a nose dive at a trestle and struck the river at a distance of 100 feet from the trestle. It will be completely dismantled in order to make the necessary repairs.

FINAL ARRANGEMENTS MADE FOR LABOR DAY

Final arrangements were made Sunday afternoon by the general labor day committee of the Atlanta Federation of Trades for celebration of the annual holiday, September 1 when more than 10,000 marchers will join in the parade and in the afternoon program of sports and other events at Grant park. The meeting was held in the Labor temple, and was presided over by President C. W. Cunningham, of the central labor body.

William Strauss, marshal of the big parade, stated that the parade will move promptly at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning, and that it will traverse the business portion of the city. This parade will be in seven divisions and will comprise a number of interesting floats in addition to the thousands of costumed marchers and ornate automobiles carrying members of various ladies' auxiliaries.

Exercises at Grant park will be especially attractive. It was announced, special preparations having been made by park employees for staging various features of the afternoon program. There will be water sports, athletic contests, games, music and dancing. Dancing will be enjoyed in the city pavilion and elaborate fireworks will be offered on the lake front as a final feature of the entertainment. A championship baseball game will feature the afternoon program. The public has been invited to join in the celebration.

There will be a division of the parade devoted to the colored locals, and the negroes will have their afternoon program at Clark university.

DINOSAUR SKELETONS ARE FOUND IN CANADA

Edmonton, Alberta, August 24.—Two dinosaur skeletons were found in the valley of Red Deer creek, southeast of here, recently by a University of Toronto expedition of four scientists. It was learned here today.

Another skeleton was located by a geological survey of Canada. Several weeks will be necessary to mount the bones, scientists said.

After burglars had helped themselves to about $50 worth of goods in the garage of George H. Gleason, at East Jamaica, Vt., recently, they detached a blank check from Mr. Gleason's check book, wrote a check for $19, signed a fictitious name and left it in payment of what they took.

Pageant To Show Colorful Events In U. S. History

America's patriotic procession through the centuries will be depicted in the parade which will feature this city's celebration of National Defense Day, September 12, according to those in charge of arrangements for the occasion.

In the parade, which will form at Peachtree and Baker streets, and march to the scene of the ceremonies at Piedmont park, will be floats, which will be shown in allegorical fashion the various stages of the country's patriotic progress—such as the ride of Paul Revere, the Boston Tea Party and similar outstanding and colorful incidents of this nation's history.

The parade, to be the feature of the city's celebration, also will embrace representatives from all of the military organizations, as well as bodies of troops from Fort McPherson, the national guard and other military organizations in and around Atlanta.

DEATH CHAIR TO BE IN MAIN BUILDING AT PRISON FARM

Milledgeville, Ga., August 24.—Georgia's electric chair will be located in the basement of the main prison building at the state farm, it was learned here today after a visit by R. E. Davidson, chairman of the prison commission, to the institution. Sufficient electric current is already on the state's property, the lines having been extended several years ago, it was announced. New York's standard of electrocution condemned men will be followed, it was said.

Howard Hinton, sentenced in a DeKalb county court last Friday, will be the first man to be electrocuted since the bill substituting the electric chair for the noose became a law. He has been sentenced to electrocution September 13.

Hinton was convicted of assaulting a young white girl near Constitution, Ga., August 16, after holding up and robbing her escort. Another negro, found guilty of robbery and attempted assault in connection with the same case, was sentenced to a term of 40 years by Judge John B. Hatcher, of the Stone Mountain circuit, who also imposed sentence on Hinton.

KLAN'S CANDIDATE CONCEDES DEFEAT

main at home for several days and "just rest." Her husband, who waged a victorious campaign in her behalf, will also remain at home, she said. Most of next week will be required to complete the collection of the ballots, which will have to be canvassed officially by the state democratic executive committee before Mrs. Ferguson is formally notified of her victory.

Many elements contributed to the almost unprecedented interest shown throughout the state in the election. Women Were Active.

Women voters all over Texas took keen interest in the campaign, because of the candidacy of one of their sex, and made their influence felt as never before here.

And, in addition to this, there was Mrs. Ferguson's plea to the voters for vindication of her family name from the disgrace thrown on it by the impeachment of her husband, former Governor James E. Ferguson. This aroused no little sympathy for her.

Also, the fact that Robertson was campaigning on an admitted klan platform threw the election squarely upon a basis of klan or anti-klan, despite an effort by the klan forces to insert the prohibition issue due to Ferguson's "wet" attitude.

BELIEVE THAT LEE MAY RECONSIDER

Houston, Texas, August 24.—Belief that T. P. Lee, of Houston, who recently refused to accept the republican nomination for governor, will be prevailed on to reconsider his decision and make the race was expressed in republican circles here Sunday, following the action of the eighth district convention in unanimously endorsing him for the position.

With a full national and legislative ticket in the field, interest now is centered on the meeting of the republican state executive committee to be held next Tuesday.

If the formal declaration of Mr. Lee is presented to the committee and accepted, a new standard-bearer probably will be chosen Tuesday. Mr. Lee is expected to attend the meeting, which was called before the controversy regarding himself arose.

In his tour of the state, her husband, "Farmer Jim" Ferguson, invaded the country sections with his sleeves rolled up and his "galluses" showing. Once he spoke from a bale of cotton under a tin roof of a cotton shed. He promised the farmers relief measures and won many friends by misquoting Shakespeare.

During a heated political address, Ferguson quoted:

"Lay on Macduff, and cursed be he who first cries pull him off."

His opponents seized upon the incident, but it proved a boomerang for the farm vote.

"Maybe he doesn't know about Shakespeare," said the farmers, "but he knows what we want and he'll get it for us."

Political observers pushed aside the sentimental mantle covering Mrs. Ferguson's victory and turned for a moment to the effects of her victory upon her arch enemy—the Ku Klux Klan, which has long been a political power in the state.

Klan Is Repudiated

"Shall the people of Texas take their orders from a Georgia dentist?" was hurled from the Panhandle to the Gulf by both the Fergusons. The strongest klan sections were invaded by the fearless pair.

And Sunday they saw their questions answered, as reports indicated that practically the entire ticket sponsored by the hooded order, from the office of comptroller to railroad commissioner, had been decisively defeated by an overwhelming majority. Only one candidate that the klan backed, W. C. Edwards, seeking the nomination as lieutenant governor, apparently was victorious and Edwards has repeatedly denounced membership in the hooded order and refrained from expressing partiality in the gubernatorial race.

BY JOHN O'BRIEN.

Paris, August 24.—Having triumphed in the chamber of deputies by winning approval for the Daves settlement and receiving a vote of confidence on his negotiations in London, Premier Herriot is expected to repeat his victory in the senate Tuesday.

At 4:30 Sunday morning, after a spirited, nerve-racking debate that had endured throughout the day and night, the chamber voted its support of the London protocols for effectuating the Daves repatriation settlement. France's dynamic, socialist premier had won his first critical battle since assuming office. He not only had scored a personal victory, but had traveled a long distance in assuring the success of a new opportunity to bring peace back to Europe.

It is generally predicted that Herriot will win again in the senate and obtain final ratification for the Daves protocols. A sharp clash is expected in the upper chamber, especially if ex-Premier Poincare interposes, but it is practically certain that Herriot will receive a vote of confidence.

Means New Policy. The chamber's action may take an important place in European history. It means approval of a new policy for France—a policy which includes evacuation of the Ruhr and the pursuit of peace based on the principle of confidence and the acceptance of economic facts contained in the Daves plan. It means also that the entente will be restored and that Germany will be given a chance to recover economically and pay her debts.

The opposition to Herriot centered around the charge that he had made concessions in London which weakened France's security. In this connection, it is pointed out now that the text of the order of the day, under which the chamber's vote was taken, urged Herriot not to forget that the repatriation policy might have had results unless there were guarantees for French security.

It is assumed, therefore, that when Herriot goes to the league of nations meeting in Geneva next month, he will do his utmost to make every one agree to the French plan for obtaining European security. This would seek to prevent the secret resumption of war manufactures by Germany, especially in the Ruhr, after the French evacuation.

Admits Storms Past.

Even the semi-official Le Soir admits that "the storms are clearing, but it would be disastrous to believe that all danger has passed." The Liberte claims that the 30-hour debate revealed that the London accords constituted a defeat for France and marked the beginning of German revenge.

Herriot emerged from the chamber at dawn, worn and haggard, but earlier in the night, in the full vigor of his personality, he had aroused the deputies from their lassitude in a remarkable speech which drove home the true facts of the Daves settlement. He appealed to French patriotism, but he appealed also to the interests of mankind.

"The Ruhr is no security," he shouted, "and never could be. Europe's equilibrium must be reestablished."

Eloquence Draws Cheers.

His eloquence drew cheers from all parts of the house, caught the imagination of his hearers and inspired the response that was "keeping the faith." The scene was a vivid contrast to the nationalistic chamber that had supported Poincare when France went into the Ruhr.

NEGRO UNDER ARREST IN GROCERY ROBBERY

Arthur Gogins, negro, was jailed by Call Officers R. E. Carroll and O. M. Morgan about daybreak Sunday morning, following probe of the burglary of the East Linden Grocery company, 288-288 East Linden street. The negro was taken into custody at his home by the police within an hour after the robbery was discovered.

Fifty dollars in cash was taken from the register. The value of missing merchandise had not been determined at a late hour Sunday night.

DAWES ON THE KLAN.

General Dawes, the republican candidate for vice president, evidently thinks about the Ku Klux

Klan's activity in politics very much as does Mr. Davis, but in a scorching denunciation of the Klan, calling it by name, he also makes an adroit bid for Klan votes, having in mind, no doubt, that outside of the south the republican party has notoriously become the Klan party,

as demonstrated in Indiana, Ohio

and other middle western states

where the Klan is in full or direct control of the republican machinery.

In the following language, however, there can be no misinterpre-

tation of the candidate's standing:

"Appeals to racial, religious or class prejudice by minority organizations are opposed to the welfare of all peaceful and civilized communities. Our constitution stands for religious tolerance and freedom. This happy country has never been through a religious war such as those which devastated Europe in the centuries

past, and brought untold misery to millions of its inhabitants. We have progressed in civilization far beyond that possibility, but to inject religious and racial issues into politics is contrary to the welfare of all the people and to the letter and spirit of the constitution of the United States.

"Joshua Quincy was right when he said 'society is never more certainly

in the path of destruction than when it trusts itself to the guidance of secret societies."

"I have told you why I am opposed to the Klan. Take what I say into your hearts and consciences and think it over calmly. However it may be with the mind, there is acrimony in conscience."

General Dawes declared unqualified agreement with Mr. Davis that the Klan issue had no place in the campaign, and if President Coolidge

will be equally as courageous, the Klan issue will be a closed one in the campaign, except as the Klan organization may inject itself where it is not sought nor wanted.

AGE OF TERSENESS.

Melville Stone recently made the statement that terseness is the predominating quality of present-day

newspaper writing and that it is affecting the quality of our literature. He might have gone farther and added that the tendency towards condensation is producing a far-reaching influence on both pri-

ate and public speech.

Many agencies have contributed to this. In the hurry of modern newspaper work there is no time

for flamboyant writing and no space to print it; and nobody has

the time to read it if it were printed.

The facts quickly and correctly told

is what the present-day reader demands of his newspaper.

The art of advertising—the necessity of saying something effective

in space too costly to be wasted—

and of using words which will puncture the reader's understanding—has contributed enormously to the terseness and consequent effectiveness of present-day expression.

Sending telegrams and business letters, where surplus words mean

extra cost, has also forced the process of elimination and helped to develop a swift and concise habit of thought. And it is this habit of thought which underlies and gives character to our national life.

We are living at the most furious

pace yet attained by man, and, notwithstanding the fact that we can fly like the birds and speak through space, time is more valuable to us than it ever has been. We have no time to waste on long introductions or rambling discourses.

What we demand of our newspapers and literary writers we also demand of speakers or those who come to see us on business. We say plainly to every one, "If you have anything to say, say it—make it snappy; and if you have nothing to say, kindly get out of the way."

There is no more room in the modern world for the old-time five-

volume novel, the sermon which stretched itself to "sixtiethly" or beyond, and the speaker who consumes thirty minutes explaining that he did not expect to be called upon, than there is for the dodo or the iguodon.

If you have anything to say, say it plainly and quickly or else—get off

the wire!

RETIREMENT OF WISE.

The hosts of friends of Congressman Walter Wise, of the sixth district, will be pained to know that ill health has forced him to retire

from congress. He has been in poor health for nearly a year and several days ago suffered a relapse.

While he is hopeful of complete recovery, he did not feel it fair to his constituency to remain in the race

for reelection to congress in his present condition of health, which

at best may take several months of quiet and rest before a complete recovery can be expected.

There is no abler man in congress

from the south, or from the nation

as to that matter, than Walter Wise.

There are many who make more noise, do more speaking and who have acquired the art of keeping themselves and their accomplishments more before the public, but there is no one who thinks more soundly and constructively and who is inspired by greater patriotism or greater devotion to the best interests of his own constituency and the best interests of all the people of the country.

He is a lawyer of great ability,

an official of unchallengeable honor

and integrity and a Christian gentleman of the highest and noblest ideals of life.

His friends hope for him a complete recovery from his illness.

His retirement leaves two candidates in the field for his seat, Fowler

Rutherford, both prominent in legislative circles and able, constructive democrats.

TREND OF THE MARKETS.

The market in stocks was called on to absorb a great deal of profit-

taking during the last five days, and for four of these days met the offerings with a great deal of support.

Friday, however, the outcome was different, for as additional selling orders came into the market the tone was found to be rather weak,

and declines were seen in practically all issues.

The most noteworthy happening

of the past week was the spurt in steel common, the advance Wednesday in this stock sending the price

up to the highest in five years. Notable advances were noted in other issues, but these saw their prices

go back under renewed profit-taking. There were the usual recoveries until Friday afternoon, when the market closed heavy.

What the next few days hold in store for the market is certainly problematical. It seems that a great deal of the reparation news has been discounted, and that the market is waiting for something else to give it

an excuse to continue its upward trend.

Everywhere there is the opinion that the trend is upward. Business conditions show all signs of being sound. Money is easy, and the industrial outlook is entirely favorable.

Some commentators have remarked that the stock market has already reflected conditions to come

six months from now, and that the advance has been too rapid. However, there are others who declare that better business conditions will continue for more than just six months and for that reason stocks

should reflect further these conditions.

"The Northeast Georgian" is a new weekly newspaper that has made its appearance at Cornelia,

though the printing plant from which it is published is located at

Demorest. Seth M. Vining is managing editor. It is a neatly printed,

8-page publication and is full of local news from various sections of northeast Georgia.

In the matter of local news from sections other than Cornelia The Northeast Georgian has introduced

an interesting innovation which can best be described, perhaps, in the

editor's own announcement:

"The Northeast Georgian is being edited by people all over this section.

It is the aim of the paper to have all of these editors to so represent their communities that the citizens will get the benefit of a local newspaper and a county newspaper combined. Each editor writes his own editorial and local news on his own accord just as if he had an independent paper. It is free from any influence of the editor of The Northeast Georgian,

thus assuring our readers of the honest opinion of people over the entire

section."

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

The Inexpressible Expressed.

It was just after the last session of the London conference. Groups of officials, dignitaries, secretaries and observers were still in the room. Voluble, dynamic little Herriot, premier of France, is shaking hands, laughing and receiving congratulations from a distance Ramsey MacDonald, former Scot, but also practical idealist, looks on. His keen eye falls on Herr Marx, chancellor of the German republic, who is talking to Herriot. The Frenchman's right and beckons the German. Herriot talking over his shoulder and not realizing what is happening until he looks in the eyes of the man, whose hand he has now firmly clasped—it's the German, Herriot looks at MacDonald, at Marx, and then shakes, gently and sincerely. Touching moment. "Beau geste." Yes, but also something of great historical significance. For that handshake means nothing formal or something required by diplomatic procedure. It was MacDonald's appeal to higher human sentiments, to which both the Frenchman and the German responded. At that moment the three entered into a higher community, a sphere which transcends racial and national barriers. Happy is the man who has that exalted sentiment.

Belgians Settled Question—No Others.

A writer in a western newspaper, in explaining the growing power of the Flemish language in Belgium, tells his readers that the Flemings really own the present equality of the language with the Walloons. The decision of the Germans during the occupation, "The Germans gave the start to the revival of Flemish as a language," he says. The Germans did nothing of the sort. When they approached Flemish leaders with the promise of full equality for their race and language, but in reality to drive a wedge between the two sections of the Belgian population, they met with a solid opposition. As a last resort Governor-General von Bissing sent for M. Franck, mayor of Antwerp and leader of the Flemish movement. The old German pleaded with Franck to support the German program. When Franck refused, von Bissing suddenly exclaimed in Flemish: "But M. Franck, I have even gone to the extent of learning your language since I came to Antwerp, which Franck replied in French: "And I, Monsieur le gouverneur, I have forgotten it since your coming." This was a question, a problem for Belgians alone, was settled by them after the Germans had left.

Wales a "Prince."

As the Prince of Wales is about to set sail for America, writers and paragraphers indulge in voluminous speculation whether he will ride a horse in the United States and of course whether he is going to fall to the ground. A good horseman must know how to fall, says an old proverb. Wales knows that. He can be serious. At the third Canadian dinner at the Waldorf Astoria, where a certain Captain Wynne was in charge, the troops knew a genial efficient officer, came to the core and willing to do his share. At the old Y in the Park, he was in the crowd at night watching the moving pictures, and joining with the overseas fellows in "Mademoiselle From Armentières" to the great delight of the Y secretary who wanted "Shall We Gather at the River." In Etaples at the great Canadian base, where the Welsh came for a rest, a Prince of Wales watched lumber jacks do the "bear dance" and did the dance himself. He learned the shanty songs of the Welsh miners, and although his father is a king and he a prince, he knows "how to play the game."

LIMIT ACTIVITY TO THIRD TICKET

Washington, August 24.—The La Follette board of strategy, in session here over the week-end, has decided to confine its efforts to the La Follette-Wheeler ticket and to avoid endorsing local candidates. Extensive plans for tours of the candidates, pushing the campaign in the south and raising funds were discussed.

The La Follette organization has been under much pressure to endorse certain local candidates in various states, particularly candidates for congress. But these requests were refused.

Kansas City Doctor Invents New Truss

New Discovery Heals Rupture Without An Operation.

A new discovery which, experts agree, has no equal for curative effects in all rupture cases, is the latest accomplishment of the well-known Hernia Specialist, Dr. Andrew, 1228 Koch Bldg., Kansas City, Mo. The extraordinary success of this new method proves that it holds and holds a rupture. It weighs only a few ounces. Has no hard gouging pads, no elastic belt, no leg straps, no steel bands, and is as comfortable as a light garment. It has enabled hundreds of persons to throw away trusses and declare their rupture absolutely healed. Many of these had serious double ruptures, from which they had suffered for years. It is Dr. Andrew's ambition to have every ruptured person enjoy the quick relief, comfort and healing power of his discovery, and he will send it on free trial to any reader of The Constitution who writes him. He wants one person in each neighborhood to whom he can refer. If you wish to be rid of a rupture for good, without an operation, take advantage of the doctor's free offer. Write him today. Statement Issued.
"The work of the joint executive committee shall be confined solely to the campaign for the election of the presidential ticket and no officer or representative of the joint executive committee shall be authorized to endorse any other candidate for public office."

The speakers' bureau has 190 speakers enlisted for the stump campaign and expects to have 500 working by the end of the campaign.

"The work of organizing the states is progressing rapidly," said a statement issued at La Follette headquarters Sunday night. In the principal states, the new movement boasts of organizations more active and effective than those of either of the old parties. One of the most significant features of the campaign is the unexpected development of substantial support in practically all the southern states.

A regional director for the south, a southern manager and an assistant manager have been appointed, but their names were not given out, pending receipt of official acceptances.

CHEROKEE INDIANS SUING TO RECOVER FIVE MILLION ACRES

Asheville, N. C., August 24.—Claims to recover five million acres of land, embracing much of east Tennessee and including the city of Chattanooga, has been filed by John M. Taylor, attorney, before the interior department for the eastern emigrant Cherokee Indians of Oklahoma and North Carolina. The suits have been filed at Murphy, Cherokee county, N. C., and also in Tennessee. The attorney in support of his claim has filed certified copies of various treaties.

65-CENT HAIR CUT BLAMED ON WOMEN BY FLORIDA BARBER

West Palm Beach, Fla., August 24.—The price of a hair-cut for men is to be advanced to 65 cents here at once, according to action taken by the barbers' union, an advance of 15 cents. A woman is the cause of it, the barbers declared, in explaining the advance, and also will have to hand over an "artistic dollar" the first time they get their hair bobbed, and 65¢ for each additional bob.

"Got to do it," lamented one barber. "We can't tell our stories, either."

Madison County Unit May Be Headquarters For Health Officers

Huntsville, Ala., August 24.—(Special.)—Madison county's health unit probably will be made a training station for health officers and other workers in the public health service, it was learned here last night. In the past several years health and sanitary officers have been sent here for field training, and have gained much practical experience. The public health service recognizes this as a model unit and its work is known throughout the nation.

The health board announced Saturday that its work for the elimination of the mosquito-breeding places in practically the whole of the Madison county had been completed, and that this would be a "mosquitoless" year for the first time in history.

RAIN AGAIN PROMISED Weather Man Persistent Despite Two Failures.

Persistent in spite of failures Saturday and Sunday, the weather bureau has carried over its prediction of thundershowers for today, adding that Tuesday in Georgia would be "mostly cloudy." In the meantime, Atlanta and the rest of the south roared under August heat or better.

With a maximum of 92 degrees hung up Sunday, August is well on the way to establishing a record number of days over 90. Atlanta is not alone in the matter, however, for Sunday found Mobile and New Orleans becalmed at even 90 degrees, while Birmingham reported 104.

SON SHOTS FATHER FOR BEATING MOTHER

Monroe, N. C., August 24.—Leslie H. Park, a young white man, is held in jail here in connection with the killing last night of his father, W. L. Park, who was shot to death through an open doorway as he sat in a chair in his home in Jackson township, about 15 miles from Monroe.

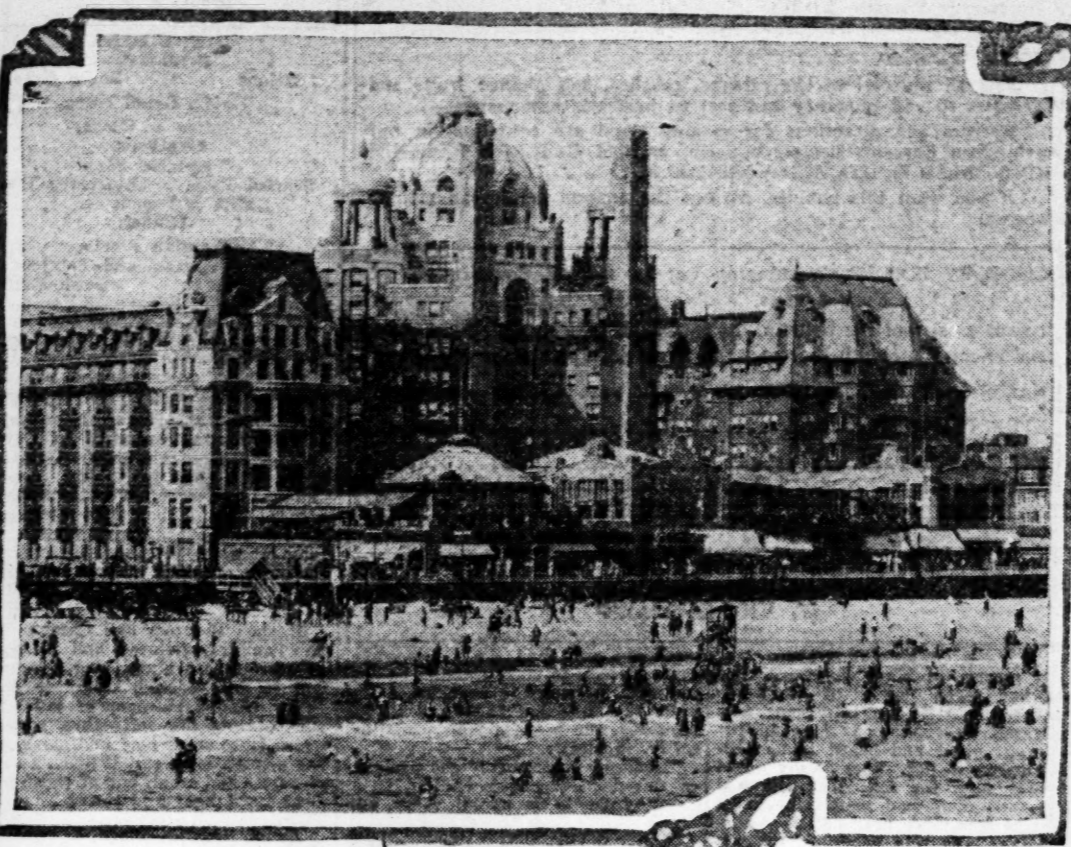

Young Park, following the shooting, made his way to Monroe and voluntarily surrendered to county officers.

According to the officers, young Park confessed that he shot his father following an alleged attack upon Mrs. W. L. Park, wife of dead man and mother of the prisoner. Young Park told the officers that his father came home about 3 o'clock last night from Lancaster, S. C., in a quarrelsome mood and proceeded to choke and beat Mrs. Park.

2 Killed in Accident.

Henderson, N. C., August 24.—C. L. Higgins and Lawrence H. Hilliard, both of Norfolk, N. C., were instantly killed in an automobile accident, 12 miles from here today. The automobile in which they were riding overturned at a sharp curve in the road pining both men under it.

CALLS NOMINATION ANTI-KLAN VICTORY New Nominee for Governor Objects To Telling Her Age

Mrs. Ferguson Points Out Its Significance in Texas and in National Democracy as Well.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Temple, Texas, August 24.—Mrs. Miriam Amanda Ferguson, nominated for governor of Texas yesterday in the democratic run-off primary, is just a quiet, unassuming wife and mother who has never taken much interest in social affairs or political affairs save when her husband was involved.

Until it was ruled that her husband, former Governor James F. Ferguson, was ineligible for office in Texas because his impeachment in 1917, and until the courts held this spring that he could not get his name on the ticket as a candidate for governor, she has had "no very great desire" to hold office.

Like many other women, Mrs. Ferguson objects to telling her age. "There is not any use in putting that in," she smiled at her interviewer today. "Besides," she added, "you better not do it."

"Why?" she was asked.

"Oh, because—because I am the woman nominee for governor now."

"Don't forget to mention my grandsons," she cautioned. It was to vindicate her husband's name so that little Ernest Nalle, 5 years old, might not be embarrassed should he wish to run for public office when he grows up, that she ran. Ernest is the idol of his grandparents and a frequent visitor in the Ferguson home. He is now in New York with his mother, Mrs. George S. Nalle, but he and his mother talked to Mrs. Ferguson over long-distance telephone early this morning and congratulated her upon her nomination.

Chummy With Children.

Asked how she felt this morning when she woke up and realized that she was the nominee, Mrs. Ferguson countered:

"Wake up? I did not even go to sleep. Of course, I'm overjoyed; but there is the realization of responsibility and I shall pray to God for guidance just as I did throughout this campaign."

Hundreds of telegrams of congratulations have poured into the Ferguson home all day from all sections of the state and nation.

This afternoon, the Ferguson family posed for motion pictures and newspaper photographers.

"Oh, I'll be glad when all the excitement is over," Mrs. Ferguson said. "I'm dying for sleep and here I can't even take my beauty nap."

Mrs. Ferguson knows how to cook and sew and she is the only member of the family who can drive a car. This afternoon she gathered flowers from her yard and took them to a sick friend, as she did yesterday on her way to the polls.

She plans to take a vacation soon, and "maybe I'll have my telephone taken out if it doesn't quit ringing." Even Governor Ferguson spent most of the day answering telephone calls and accepting congratulations for his wife.

"Don't forget to mention my grandsons," she cautioned. It was to vindicate her husband's name so that little Ernest Nalle, 5 years old, might not be embarrassed should he wish to run for public office when he grows up, that she ran. Ernest is the idol of his grandparents and a frequent visitor in the Ferguson home. He is now in New York with his mother, Mrs. George S. Nalle, but he and his mother talked to Mrs. Ferguson over long-distance telephone early this morning and congratulated her upon her nomination.

Chummy With Children.

Asked how she felt this morning when she woke up and realized that she was the nominee, Mrs. Ferguson countered:

"Wake up? I did not even go to sleep. Of course, I'm overjoyed; but there is the realization of responsibility and I shall pray to God for guidance just as I did throughout this campaign."

Hundreds of telegrams of congratulations have poured into the Ferguson home all day from all sections of the state and nation.

This afternoon, the Ferguson family posed for motion pictures and newspaper photographers.

"Oh, I'll be glad when all the excitement is over," Mrs. Ferguson said. "I'm dying for sleep and here I can't even take my beauty nap."

Mrs. Ferguson knows how to cook and sew and she is the only member of the family who can drive a car. This afternoon she gathered flowers from her yard and took them to a sick friend, as she did yesterday on her way to the polls.

She plans to take a vacation soon, and "maybe I'll have my telephone taken out if it doesn't quit ringing." Even Governor Ferguson spent most of the day answering telephone calls and accepting congratulations for his wife.

Objects To Telling Age.

Like many other women, Mrs. Ferguson objects to telling her age. "There is not any use in putting that in," she smiled at her interviewer today. "Besides," she added, "you better not do it."

"Why?" she was asked.

"Oh, because—because I am the woman nominee for governor now."

CLAMS AND CAULIFLOWERS

THE most interesting things you read about in politics, we have found, are the things you read between the lines.

And so the other day we saw in the papers that a very able woman heads a state department in a state not a thousand miles away from us was threatened by a bill introduced in her legislature with being deprived of her veto power in the appointment of county officers to handle the work of her department in the counties. Whereupon, it didn't take a very keen olfactory sense to enable us to smell a rodent.

Indeed, we didn't take a great amount of pride to ourselves that we immediately suspected that somebody wanted to reward a few politicians with these particular county jobs, and the able lady, strange to say, and preferred for the jobs somebody capable of handling them.

We did what we frequently do when we wish information. We asked a man.

He confirmed our dark suspicions. "Are you people who make things move in your state going to let such a thing be put over?" we asked.

"There are two ways to handle such a condition," he answered, "but all of the enlightened majority do not vote.

There are the women, for instance. Where is the "tiger love" of mothers, that it withholds itself from the polls when such issues are to the front?

Legislators are only partly to blame for unenlightened legislation. It is the rest of us voters who put them in power.

It is the inaction let others put them there.

TO WHAT NOBLE ENDS. The invention of the airplane has justified itself.

One arrived on a baseball field the other day with an emergency pitcher just as the substitute pitcher in the game "blew up."

AN OLD ART REVIVED. The economic conference now being held at Williamstown, Mass., falls down on the job another year, the newspapers of the country ought to find it profitable to subsidize the institution.

It ought, in the nature of things, to be a dry and heavy conference, but nearly every day brings a real thrill.

One scientist's sensation today makes us all scurry to the grocery store and the butcher's to lay in supplies against the time when the United States has two hundred million population, and the food won't go around.

Another morning gives some Englishman the opportunity to grow eloquent over the causes of war, when he discloses that the "modern age" of discord is a barrel of petroleum.

And then, maybe, an admiral, fearful that the army will copy all the publicity about the scare we are throwing into Europe with our national mobilization-test-defense day, announces that when we get to number two hundred million people, we won't starve to death. The scientists are all wrong. We'll shoot one another up in a great civil war.

Anyway, nobody can say after these conferences, that the modern world has lost the art of conversation.

SPEAKING OF Defense Day, the next day after General Pershing is to return, he can't review troops and be pictured in the movies any more in his uniform and on horseback?

If anything like that is threatened, we are Pershing's retirement the day after.

Why not delay Defense day a few years?

"Madeleine of the Movies." (WITH "MISS ATLANTA")

"Madeleine of the Movies," the George M. Cohan "surprise comedy," opens its week at the Lyric theater.

The comedy, which has been a leading part of the Lyric's season, is a surprise ending, which patrons of the theater are asked not to divulge to friends who have not seen it.

"The Ten Commandments." (Coming to Atlanta Theater.) Cecil B. DeMille's new production, "The Ten Commandments," which is to have its local premiere at the Atlanta theatre, with matinees on Monday (Labor Day), continuing throughout the week twice daily, at 2:30 and 8:30, shows a great cast of some of the best actors and actresses in the world, and an interesting peculiarity of it is that there are no less than four leading women.

Lyons short subjects, interest in even "Keep Moving," the newest one is expected to be eclipsed at the Rialto, to this week by "Un-guarded Women," opening at that popular playhouse today. Robe Daniels, Richard Dix and Mary Astor head the cast.

Loew's Vaudeville. (At Loew's Grand.) Jean Barrios "The Star of Fashion," will appear at Loew's Grand tomorrow night in "Artistic Song Impression," one of the biggest vaudeville acts of the season and a distinct surprise. Paul Humphrey, the well-known pianist, will be seen in this act. Let's Dance, a big song and dance revue with the McGushy twins, Dubois and Ross, and John Stanley, Don Amonte and the King sisters will put forth their best efforts to assist Mr. Hodges in showing his appreciation for Atlanta's splendid support.

"Un-guarded Women." (At the Rialto.) As popular as have been the Eddie

"Jimmie's Night Out." (At the Forsyth.) A scintillating, breezy musical comedy bit—"Jimmie's Night Out," filled with catchy songs and new dances and a hundred laughs will be offered at the Forsyth theater this week by Jimmie Hodges and members of his musical comedy company.

The play will serve to bid farewell to Atlanta by the Jimmie Hodges company, it completing its summer season of musical comedy successes at the popular theater this week.

All the old favorites, Bonnie TeBeau, pretty leading lady; Ollie Hodges, Don Amonte and the King sisters will put forth their best efforts to assist Mr. Hodges in showing his appreciation for Atlanta's splendid support.

VII.—A Glimpse of Heaven. It seemed to Mary Howard that she had floated into some new universe, as she stood there in the fragrant night and heard Bruce Gillian speak to her. She hardly dared answer him, for fear that she had been mistaken, had merely imagined that he was near her.

"Mary," he said eagerly, "are you really there? I can't see you, it's so dark."

She hesitated an instant, then laid her hand in his. Quickly he took it in both his own.

"Do you know that it's Midsummer Night's Eve?" he demanded. "There's magic in this night. Sit down here on this bench with me, won't you? There are so many things I want to say to you."

She sat at his side. Honey-suckle and roses bloomed all about them in the swimming pool nearby where lilies floated, and at its edges heavy-scented flowers of the night weighted the air with their fragrance.

Mary forgot Camilla and her forget the burden of debt that shackled her whole existence, and thought only of the man who sat there holding her hands.

"I want to tell you everything there is to know about me, Mary," he began, leaning forward so that his shoulder touched hers, trying to see her face. "But it doesn't really matter who or what I am, just now, does it? We can talk about things like that in broad daylight. Just now I want to tell you that I love you."

"And I," she stopped abruptly; some newborn instinct told her that they were not alone. Yet the garden was quiet, and the murmuring of the water near their feet and the chirping of a sleepy bird. "I'll have to tell you about me, too—though probably you've heard the things people

"I care too much for you even to know what people say," he answered. "And all I want you to know about yourself is that you love me."

"I love you," she told him, simply, and as he kissed her, she wondered that she had ever thought till then that she loved him.

"Will you love me always?" he asked her presently, and she, defying the superstition that hovered over her, always answered, "So much, that nothing can ever separate us."

"And will you marry me at once?" he demanded, holding her close again. "Will you?" "Yes, yes, yes," she answered, "I'll have you."

"Oh, I—I hate you!" she cried. "Possibly you do—but even so, you might better marry me than Gillian."

"What?—him?—his money, not love, that you need?"

She fled then, her airy black draperies catching on the rose bushes as she ran; head bent, she did not see Gillian as she passed him.

Grain Prices, Freight Rates. The 10 per cent reduction in freight rates ordered in 1922 caused the total freight charges paid upon wheat in 1923 to be $24,000,000 less than in 1921, but the farm value of the wheat crop in 1923 was $29,000,000 less than in 1921.

In other words the railroads lost $28,000,000 in freight rates, the farmers lost $29,000,000 by the decline of the farm value of their wheat, and the consumers of this country and Europe gained $52,000,000 at the expense of both.—From the Sterling (Ill.) Gazette.

Busy Season for Demagogues. There is no limit, apparently, to the demagoguery of some of our public officials. An ordinary train accident on the Long Island Railroad company and a similar accident on the Brighton Beach division of the Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit company has set in motion all the demagogues who regard such accidents as a means of advancing their political fortune.

Demagogues attack upon corporations and great business interests make for instability, unemployment, reduction of wages and the paralysis of enterprise. There is no objection to legitimate and proper supervision and regulation of public service corporations and great business enterprises, but the demagogues are inescapably directed against them in insincerity and the product of demagoguery.—From the Brooklyn (N. Y.) Citizen.

Hard Work. "Where are you men going?" the new boss demanded of two dorkies who were shuffling along as if bent on nothing in particular.

"Boss," said one, "we is gwine up to de mill with this bean plunk."

"Plunk! I don't see any plunk!" roared the supervisor.

No, at all disturbed by his tone, the speaker looked down at his hands, then over his shoulder. Finally, to his fellow worker, he calmly observed: "Well, now, don't dat beat all! IZ we s'nt gone an' clean forgot de plunk!"—From Everybody's Magazine for September.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Melons. Boiled Eggs. Raisin Bread Toast. Coffee or Cocoa. Luncheon. Vegetable Soup. Stuffed Eggs. Blueberry Pie. Milk or Lemonade. Dinner.

Venetian Steaks. Mashed Carrots and Potatoes. Stuffed Beets. Fruit Souffle.

TODAY'S RECIPES. Venetian Steaks—Cut one pound file of beef into neat slices. Heat a tablespoon of dripping in a skillet. Put the meat in and cook for about seven minutes. Make a sauce by heating one tablespoon of good gravy or stock, one hard-boiled egg chopped, and one tablespoon mixed pickles together. On a hot dish arrange a mound of mashed carrots and potatoes, place the filets on this and pour the sauce carefully around the base of the potato mound.

Mashed Potatoes and Carrots—Cut two pounds of potatoes and one pound of carrots into slices, and put on to boil in just enough water to cover them. Add a teaspoon of salt. Boil till potatoes are soft—then pour off water (into stock pot) and mash, adding pepper, more salt if liked, a chunk of butter and a half cup of warm milk. Beat until light and fluffy.

Fruit Souffle—Place a pound of pitted sweet cherries or any other fruit in a pie dish. Cook three eggs with one-half cup sugar and the grated rind of a lemon in a double boiler till thick—stirring all the time. Then beat until cold and stir in one-quarter pound (one-half cup) flour lightly. Pour it over the fruit, and bake in a moderate oven fifteen minutes. If hard fruit is used, it must be stewed first.

When selecting vegetables, take care to notice whether or not they have been soaked in water to freshen them. If so, they are not at their best. This is one of the advantages of selecting such things personally, rather than trusting to the telephone or a messenger. Beets should have some earth clinging to their roots. Spinach should have green leaves, some of which are rather dirty, otherwise one suspects that the wilted spinach has been soaked in water to revive it. Cabbage should be heavy and firm with crisp inner white leaves. Carrots should be hard and firm and not too large. Onions should be hard and firm especially when pressed at the stem end. Squash should be hard without any soft spots.

SUGGESTION. This seems worth trying. One woman writes: When I took down my cotton draperies this year the cloth was perfectly good but the sun had faded the colors. I laundered the draperies, then while they were still hot from the ironing I took regular school coloring crayons and went over the designs. I used the colors sparingly, where little color was needed and pressed hard where the color was deepest in the original design. Then I put plain paper over the work and pressed it with a hot iron. The curtains look like new.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS. Leather Bindings. Books bound in leather should be taken out of the bookcase occasionally and dusted with an oiled cloth, to restore some of the oil that has dried out of the leather.

When Space Is Needed. For the person living in the small apartment and cramped for space, there is nothing nicer than one of the flat wooden chests on wooden wheels that can be kept under the bed. In it can be stored all the household linens.

A Preserve Census. The wise housewife takes a census of the jellies, preserves and pickles that are used during the winter months. Then she knows about the quantity that will be consumed in the following season and has not a lot of things left over at the end of the winter.

Easy Threading. If embroidering with varn it is very difficult to thread the needle. Try this. Take a short piece of sewing thread, place the two ends together and put through the eye of the needle. Then put the yarn through the loop and pull the sewing thread and the yarn through the eye.

SUNSHINE PELLETS. An honest confession. I'm good for the soul; If it doesn't pay to live. The old swimmer's hole.

We eat too much of sweets and such when weight's around 200. Masking a bad odor with one less objectionable is only "kidding" one's nostrils.

They grow it and thresh it. Then send it to mill; The jobbers all stock it. But we pay the bill.

Weather Lore: A dark hair on the coat of a blonde woman's husband usually precedes a bad blow.

Obviously, a feid breath due to the presence of decomposition in the crypts of diseased tonsils, will disappear when the tonsils are removed.

When you're grouchy it's off the grub. And not your club that makes you dub; There is no treatment half as good As eighteen hours for excess food.

We speak of "bad breath" when we mean bad mouth or bad nose. Objectionable odors on the breath are usually due to diseased gums, diseased tonsils or some diseased condition involving the nose.

POEMS THAT LIVE. SONG. My silks and fine array, My smiles and languished air, Be loved and driven away; And mournful hand Despair! Brings me yew to deck my grave; Such end true lovers have.

His face is fair as heaven; When springing buds unfold; O why to him wasn't given, Whose heart is love's all-worshiped tomb. Where all Love's pilgrims come.

Bring me an ax and spade, Bring me a winding sheet; When I'll my grave have made, Let winds and tempests beat; Then down I'll lie, as cold as clay; True love doth pass away! —William Blake.

BEAUTY CHATS

FACE MASKS. Face masks are the latest cure-all of the beauty shops. They are made of soft wax, clay with astringents mixed in, white of egg, or they are strips of linen, rolled over the face.

If you are clever you can make your own face masks. You can, of course, buy the clay and use it according to the elaborate directions accompanying each tube if your skin will stand so severe a treatment. Mine won't. I have, as a matter of business, experimented with every kind that comes to my notice and I find them all very drying and irritating, though the immediate effect seems excellent. And elaborate cold cream rubs afterward won't soothe the irritation. I prefer the old-fashioned cream-massage and linen bandage masks.

There are various ways of making these face masks. One is to make a chin strap of a strip of heavy linen, gathered on one side for about three inches. This is to make it fit around the chin. Tapes should be sewed at each end so that the strap can be fitted under and around the chin, and then tied over the head. This does much in preventing double chins and sagging chin lines. A forehead strap is made from a strip of linen three inches wide, gathered very slightly at each end where tapes are sewed. This ties across the forehead.

Nothing more than these two straps are really needed. To raise the sagging cheek muscles and to do away with lines around the mouth, small wads of absorbent cotton are stuffed under the strap, once it is adjusted comfortably, so that the extra pressure made by the wad holds up the sagging muscles. For mouth lines, for instance, wads would be stuffed in just under the corners of the mouth, to push up the cheeks and to hold back the flesh that sags down toward the mouth.

Harmonica G.—I will be glad to mail you the sage and sulphur formula on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Sulphur is a tonic for the scalp.

Maiale—Take a daily full warm bath, eat less of rich foods for a time and your skin will become clearer. Many school girls have the habit of eating too much candy between meals, which usually results in crops of pimples and coarsened pores.

Babe—You can remove most of the dandruff if you massage your scalp with crude oil the night before the regular shampoo. Tie head up in towel overnight to protect linen.

Tomorrow—Answered Letters. All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So, if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question.—The Editor.

WORLD'S CRACK TENNIS STARS

Ready for Turney Today

World's Crack Tennis Stars Ready for Turney Today

New York, August 24.—One of the strongest groups of tennis players ever assembled, is gathered here for the opening of the men's national singles championship, which begins Monday at the West Side Tennis club, Forest Hills.

William T. Tilden II, present holder of the championship, who has successfully defended his title in the United States four times in the Davis cup matches, is expected to have one of the hardest fights of his career to retain his title.

Two foreign stars have the honor of opening the contest Monday afternoon. Norman Brookes, of Australia, who, with the late Anthony F. Wilding, won the Davis cup in 1914, will meet G. M. Kelleher, of New York, on court No. 1, while on the second court Jean Borotra, of France, star of the French Davis cup team and winner this year at Wimbledon will battle Carl Fischer, the former national intercollegiate champion.

Other matches Monday include Robert K. Watson, of Washington, Harold Throckmorton, of Pat O'Hara Wood, Brian I. C. Norton, of Clarence J. Griffin, Howard Kinsey, of Dr. George King, and William T. Tilden II, of New York, on court No. 1, while on the second court Jean Borotra, of France, star of the French Davis cup team and winner this year at Wimbledon will battle Carl Fischer, the former national intercollegiate champion.

While three-fourths of the 52 entrants are from the United States stars from numerous foreign countries, including Japan, France, Canada, China, Mexico and Spain, are expected to give a good account of themselves. Australia's best players, here to fight for the Davis cup.

all have entered the individual championship, even the players who are not competing for the Davis cup. Besides Norman Brookes, Australia has Gerald Patterson, Pat O'Hara Wood, Richard Schlesinger and Fredrick Kalms.

France, in addition to Jean Borotra, has Jacques Brugnon, Rene Lacoste and Alain Gerbault, the man who recently attained fame by crossing the Atlantic country in a sailboat.

Japan is represented by Masanobu Fukuda, Zensho Shimizu, Sunao Okamoto and Takekichi Harada, present title-holder of his country.

For Canada there are Jack Wright, Davis Morris and William Crocker. Spain, Mexico and China have pinned their hopes on lone stars, their entrants, respectively, being Manuel Alonso, Manuel Illano and Pital Kong.

America's defense against this aggregation is composed of her highest ranking players. Examination of a list of the country's 20 best players discloses that 19 of these are on entry at Forest Hills.

Among these are Tilden, William T. Johnston, R. Norris Williams, Vincent Richards, Francis T. Hunter, Howard D. Kinsey, Carl H. Fischer, Brian I. C. Norton, Harvey Snodgrass and Robert Kinsey.

Tilden, naturally, is favored to win his national championship, but in some quarters it is believed that he may suffer a mishap. Vincent Richards, winner of the Olympic singles championship, whose game for some time has been growing stronger, is considered by many as Tilden's possible successor. If Tilden and Richards do meet, the schedule is so arranged as to place them opposite each other in the semi-finals.

It is expected the tournament will end on Labor day.

Southern League Players Arrested Nine

NEW ORLEANS, August 24.—Chattanooga was easy for the Pelicans, who took both halves of a double header, 7 to 0 and 3 to 0. In winning the first game Hollingsworth turned in his twenty-second victory of the season, more games than any other pitcher in the league so far. "Dutch" Henry, of Chattanooga, was the victor in the second game, smashed out a home run.

Times in Testing Out Sunday Baseball Law

Portsmouth, Va., August 24.—Eighteen members of the Portsmouth and Rocky Mount baseball teams of the Virginia league, were arrested here this afternoon, as a part of the attempt of local club owners to test the state law against Sunday labor, under which professional baseball has been banned in Virginia. Each of the nine members of both teams was formally placed under arrest at the end of each inning, and as fast as they were arrested, were bailed for their appearance in police court Wednesday. At the end of the game, the two umpires and four park attendants also were placed under arrest.

Decision to test the law was made yesterday, and announcement was made that the game would be a regularly scheduled league affair, advanced from Monday. This decision was later changed and the game will not count in the percentage column. Sunday baseball at which no admission was charged, has been permitted and in order to come within the law the club owners announced no admission would be charged, but that score cards would be sold at a price corresponding with the usual admission fee. About 2,000 persons turned out to witness the game, but the only arrests were those of the players, umpires, gate-keepers and score card men. At the end of the first inning the players were arrested and then went in a body to the club house, where a waiting justice of the peace bailed them in nominal sums. This was repeated nine times. Rocky Mount won the game, 6 to 4.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

REDS TAKE DOUBLE BILL. (Cincinnati, Ohio, August 24.—Cincinnati went on a hitting spree today and won both halves of a double header, 2 to 0 and 2 to 0. Sheehan pitched shut out in the first game and Pedro Martinez in the second. Both teams bled the Braves.

Service Beyond the Contract, Says Atlanta Tent & Awning Co.

It has been the custom from time immemorial for the people of every clime to protect themselves from the burning rays of the midday sun. From the crawling worm who is supposed to be the low type of insect, the people of every clime have endeavored to protect themselves from the burning rays of the midday sun. While Atlanta and vicinity are especially endowed by nature in having away above the average number of clear and sunny days, man in his ingenuity has supplied us with awnings of every description to make our days more pleasant in this favored section.

The Atlanta Tent and Awning company, having made a careful study of the sun conditions in this part of the country, has spared neither time nor money in the making of awnings and tents that will best suit the individual needs of their many customers and they are now recognized as the foremost leaders in their line. It would be an interesting experience for the readers of this column to spend an hour or two going through the factory of this company observing the different operations required to complete an awning or tent, from the cutting of material to shipping department. To the average person an awning is just an awning, but to the careful manufacturer it is considerably more. Trained salesmen are necessary, skilled and courteous, efficient service men that operate erection trucks and hang awnings. By possessing all of these the Atlanta Tent and Awning company has risen rapidly in serving some of the finest homes in Atlanta. The company uses the finest material obtainable, the materials are new and brilliant at all times, thus assuring the discriminating buyer of his clothes, from the unclean pall, from the body of the cow, from the hands of any one of several persons handling the milk and from insects and germs of the air.

Pasteurized Milk Will Save Lives of Many Atlanta Babies

Credit has been given by writers of ancient history to Mother Eve as the first to discover that the milk from animals was of great food value. Then, when we come down to Noah's time, the cow and her mate were more than 40 years ago, and after much experimenting, he discovered that milk contains valuable bacteria, and it may contain bacteria carrying death. Not to cause undesirable changes in the chemical composition was the aim of Pasteur's investigation. He discovered that by heating milk to 140 degrees Fahrenheit and holding it there 20 minutes, the disease-producing bacteria was destroyed, undesirable changes were avoided in the chemical composition and much beneficial bacteria remained undestroyed, then, if the milk is cooled below the boiling point, 50 degrees Fahrenheit, bottled and sealed to prevent introduction of new bacteria and delivered clean.

When Pasteur gave the world the benefit of his discovery he built for himself a monument that has been the saving of untold millions of human lives. Pasteurization must not be confused with boiling milk, for many people may get too enthusiastic and heat the milk to over 212 degrees and overdo it, and render its food value much less than it should be. Every attempt to better Pasteur's methods during the past year have been without good results and the United States agricultural department recommends heating milk to 145 degrees Fahrenheit, hold there for 30 minutes, then ice and bottle and keep cold until used.

Municipal Market a Credit And Benefit to All Atlanta

The people of Atlanta are just beginning to realize in a full measure the great benefits to be obtained in trading at Atlanta's big municipal market. The largest and choicest fruits and vegetables may be obtained there, for 95 per cent of the goods sold on this big market is Georgia raised. The most of it is in the vine or on the vine or in the fruit until it reaches its full maturity, thus giving a great advantage over the same products that are pulled half ripe and shipped here from a remote distance.

Then, in the matter of choice of any one product, you have the opportunity of selecting from more than 100 stands the particular products you wish to obtain, thus getting just what you want at prices you want to pay. This big municipal market has the very latest improved methods of all the best municipal markets throughout the country, as it was planned and built after a representative committee of Atlanta citizens made a wide tour of the best municipal markets in this country and embraced in this building the best features of the many big markets they visited.

As all the main thoroughfares leading to the municipal market, which is located on Edgewood avenue, Butler, Bell and Boss streets, are now nearly complete this will make it easy for everybody in Atlanta or vicinity to get to this market in very quick time and while the municipal market is only five blocks from Five Points the little extra distance traveled will more than pay in the difference saved when you commence to fill the market basket.

In addition to the farm products, the choicest brands of fresh meats and baked goods may be had, and a large restaurant, soda fountain, flower stand and quick-lunch stand are conveniently located for the benefit of those who are hungry when they need flowers or are hungry and thirsty. All of the members of the several farmers' associations doing business in this big market are very proud of their connection here and will do their utmost to please and serve you.

A woman in Norwich, England, had an unusual birth certificate to offer as proof of her daughter's age. The certificate was a hen's egg on which the name of the girl and the date of her birth had been engraved.

—MORTGAGE INSURANCE—

You no doubt take pride in the possession of YOUR OWN HOME as a permanent residence of your family—perhaps it is MORTGAGED!

Would you now consider attractive a small additional investment that would insure the payment of all interest charges, taxes, fire insurance, etc., in case death or disablement of your family member or would you be the victim of death, would deliver clear title on your property to your loved ones? We specialize in such insurance.

SIDNEY J. HAYLES SHOWS VALUE OF BUSINESS BUDGETS

Sidney J. Hayles, L.L.B., C. P. A., of Fourth National Bank Building, Atlanta, Ga., in advocating the mortgage use of budget systems, supplemented by monthly reports of operations, comments as follows:

"A budget should be prepared based on estimated sales and operating costs for the ensuing period. Theoretical monthly statements should be tabulated in advance based on these figures. These statements will show the monthly profit or loss which will ensue under the existing conditions. If the results which are thus prognosticated are not satisfactory an opportunity is given in advance to change the policy of the concern in order to make a more favorable showing. In the event the estimated monthly results are satisfactory, but when the actual monthly figures are compiled the estimated profit has not been realized, a comparison of estimated with actual figures will quickly disclose the reason. The reason being known, an opportunity is given to correct the condition, if it is susceptible of correction, before the loss is irreparable. Mr. Hayles is of the opinion that the trend of modern business points in the direction of some such accounting system as outlined above. He states that the difference between the above-described system and the usual practice of waiting until the close of a period to learn that the operations have been unprofitable is similar to that existing between an 'antidote' and an 'autopsy.'"

DR. J. W. BEESON REPRESENTS GA. IN FRATERNAL CONGRESS

Dr. J. W. Beeson, president of the Georgia Fraternal Congress, left for Washington Saturday, where he goes as delegate to the National Fraternal Congress, which opens its sessions today, and will last through Thursday. This congress is composed of over 200 fraternal organizations throughout the United States and Canada that carry life insurance protection in an adjunct to their societies. They have a membership of over 10,000,000 in the United States carrying about one-third of the life insurance that is carried by Americans.

Fraternal life insurance has sprung up in the last 50 years. Now practically all fraternal benefit societies have placed their business on adequate rates, setting aside the proper local reserve to protect their policyholders. Thanks for this being done largely to the 'Mobile bill' and New York Conference bill, which have become laws in nearly all states in the union.

The annual meeting of the National Fraternal Congress is to devise ways and means for improving fraternal benefit societies.

A tabulation of the reports of the fraternal life insurance for 1923 shows their new business for the year ending December 31, 1923, was $1,233,836,333. Their income was $221,781,644, an increase of over $17,000,000 during the year. The disbursements were $179,129,567, which included benefits to members and beneficiaries of $127,141,609. The mortality ratio was a little higher than in 1922.

Fraternal life insurance now exceeds the ten-billion mark, being $11,112,528,965. The assets were increased during the year by $400,000,000, and were $581,118,680.

One of the speakers on the program this year will be President Calvin Coolidge, who addresses the congress at 10 o'clock, after which the speakers of national reputation will be on the program.

Besides Dr. Beeson as delegate, Mrs. Clara B. Beeson, his wife, will be present. She is an alternate delegate from Georgia. This will be a meeting of great moment to all the societies represented.

GIRL INJURED IN FALL

Loses Grip on Cable and Drops Into Lake.

Miss Lorena Patterson, 17, of 20 Pierce street, narrowly escaped serious injuries Sunday afternoon when she fell from a cable car.

Mooney's lake, when in descending the cable toward the water she struck her foot against a bolt, lost her hold on the cable and fell.

Dazed from her injuries, Miss Patterson was taken from the lake by friends and rushed to the Grady hospital. Surgeons expressed the belief that one of her legs in her right foot was fractured. She also was bruised about the body.

NEGRO IS CAPTURED AFTER BEING SHOT

Nashville, Tenn., August 24.—Herman Witherspoon, negro, 25 years old, wanted by Nashville police in connection with the killing on August 4 of Patrolman John F. Egan, was captured today at Columbia, near here, after he was shot four times by officers as he leaped through the window of the house of his sister.

Witherspoon ran 200 yards and dived under a house occupied by Willie Stone, also a negro, whence the officers dragged him, bleeding profusely.

The negro was brought to Nashville and taken to the hospital of the state police to avoid possible violence.

DUSTIN FARNUM WEDS FORMER LEADING LADY

Los Angeles, August 24.—Dustin Farnum, motion picture actor, who recently obtained a divorce from Mary Connell at Reno, Nev., was to marry Winifred Kingston, film actress, here today, it was announced. Miss Kingston was formerly Farnum's leading lady.

Catch One of Negroes.

Somerville, Tenn., August 24.—Tom Rivers, one of the five negroes sought for the attack on Deputy Sheriff John C. Chambers yesterday, which the officer was seriously wounded, was captured today after he had been shot by members of a posse when he resisted arrest. Tom Shedd, another negro alleged to have participated in the attack, is believed to be surrounded by a posse ten miles from here. The three others, negroes, have eluded the posse.

Wigs Made of Glass Hair.

Fine threads of spun glass, such as is used for sparking lines on Christmas trees, are being made into wigs for women by a newly discovered process, which may set a new style, says Popular Science Monthly for September.

There now, little girlie, stop looking so sorry. You're quite deserted, it's true; you've not lost your beauty, adorable cutie. But here's what's the matter with you. When you're an engagement, you don't leave in amazement. Every man who comes to your door. You do not look stunning, nor do you look cunning. In fact, you're a terrible bore. And those things, girl, are bad—would discourage a lad. But we really can let those pass. For the matter is, cutie, you keep sweet potato. Guessing too much, more or less. While you leave him in haste, maybe to powder your face. And he must sit there alone waiting.

The King of Beasts

BY COURTNEY RILEY COOPER

(Continued from Sunday's Magazine.) And with it the dog sprang also, to growl, in half-earnest fashion, to evade the swift striking claws, and then, like some over-heavy pugilist suddenly endowed with the speed of a lightweight, to strike the cat far to one side with a big paw, tumbling it off balance and then, before it could regain its poise, to seize it by the neck, strongly yet gently, to shake it almost in playful fashion, and finally, with a sudden, whirling motion, to throw it far from him, to the sideboards of the cage, where it struck, rolled, then lay, hissing and yowling, but not moving again to the attack. Outside the cage a laugh sounded, that of the girl. "Well, there's one thing certain," came at last, "that cub's found something he can't bulldoze!" Ned Wainright was talking as he moved closer to the bars. "Looks like we might be able to do something through that dog. Better not leave them together too long at the start—might be best to work it gradually. This way Crook'll only skulk. Best to let him find out for sure that he's not the demon he thinks he is. We'll take Gyp out now, and try it again tomorrow."

THE GUMPS—HOMeward BOUND

asked as they started around the big top together.
"It's gone even further—they're sleeping side by side. You've noticed in the last few days how Gyp has been able to go up to Crook without the cat trying to fight him?"
"Yes—and I seemed to feel that there was less animosity on the cub's part like he'd sized Gyp up and decided he wasn't so bad after all."
"That's the way I figured it too, and so this afternoon, I just thought I'd try them out. Fixed up a rubber ball with some catnip on it and tossed it into the cage. Gyp began to play with it, and then, like I'd figured, the catnip attracted the cub. Pretty soon he moved out of his corner and pawed at the ball, whereupon Gyp barked and knocked the thing across the cage, and the romp was on. I let them play until they got tired, and when the lion stretched out, Gyp, like the good pup he is, moved right over beside him and lay down, too. So I just left them together—they're all right now. I think."

But they had gained the menagerie connection now and turned within. Softly they started to make their way to the cage, the girl slightly in the lead. But ten feet further on, she halted.

"Look!"
For the cat evidently had just awakened, and was finishing its feline stretching. Then slowly, it had begun to circle the dog, its body moving smoothly, its eyes narrowed again. It—

"Gyp! Gyp there! Quick—!"
The man shouted it as he ran forward, searching hastily for a feeding fork as he went. The actions of the cat now were apparent: the skin was drawn back from his teeth as he moved about the sleeping dog until he could reach a point behind its back. The muscles bunched, a baby attempt at a roar and he leaped!

Scratching and clawing, his jaws working swiftly, he settled in a lump upon the bulldog's neck—even before Wainright could reach the bars with his hastily summoned feeding fork, the blood had begun to spurt as the big dog, twisting and writhing, sought to free himself from the treacherous beast which had attacked him in his sleep, and struggled in vain. The cub was fighting for a death grip, his claws were driving deep with every blow; only the swift moving feeding fork in the hands of Ned Wainright interfered as it struck him again and again, finally forced against his chest, and with the full force of the trainer behind it, breaking his hold. Then, while the weapon was transferred to the girl, who, with swift lunges of the steel spear drove the cat to the corner, Wainright made the door of the cage and seized a weeping, bleeding form in his arms, to carry it forth—playful, good-natured Gyp, torn in a dozen places, his neck a circle of red. Faithful Gyp—a victim of treachery. Hurriedly Wainright carried him to the cage where he kept his first-aid supplies. There they bandaged him, the girl solicitous and tender, the man with a determined gleam in his eyes as he laved the lacerations and cauterized them—for the cut of a cat's claw is poisonous.

"That's feline nature for you!" came at last, and the girl looked up. "You mean—"

"Crook played a game. He's no lion—he's a leopard in a lion's body. With a little murder thrown in. It's the same stunt I've seen leopards pull time after time: pretend to be tame, pretend to be docile, but they're only waiting for their chance. That's what this cub did—acted friendly, and jumped his enemy from the back! I—"

"I haven't given up yet. That lion's going to get me, or I'll get him before we're through. As long as I stay on this circus, I'll keep on working at him. If Gyp gets well, I'm going to try him again—it's our only chance. He'll be on his guard now."

"Too much in fact. For a week later, when the cage door opened to admit a scarred, heavy-jawed bulldog, it was a different Gyp which entered, a Gyp which recognized treachery and which meant to take no chances."

"Come on, Gyp," he ordered, "don't blame you much. I guess it's up to me from now on."

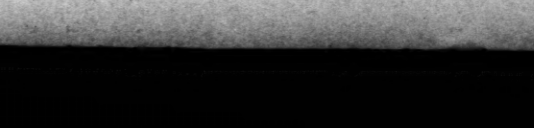

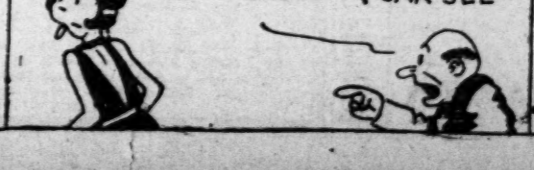

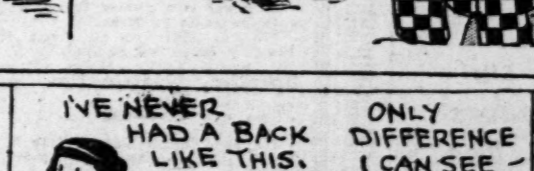

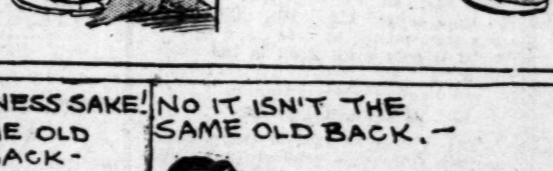

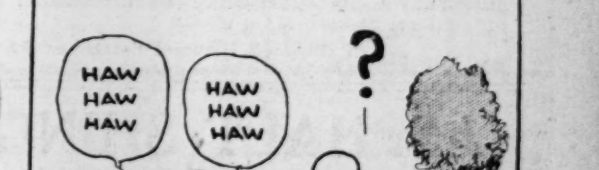

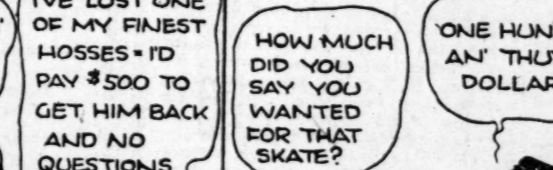

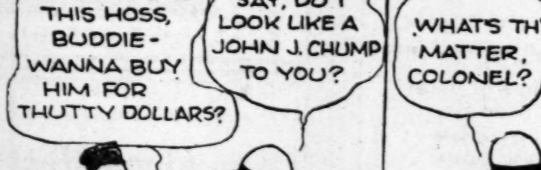

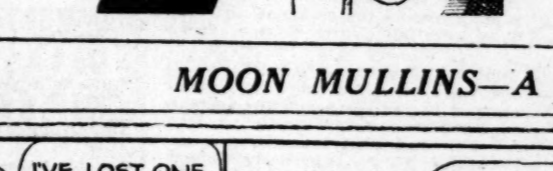

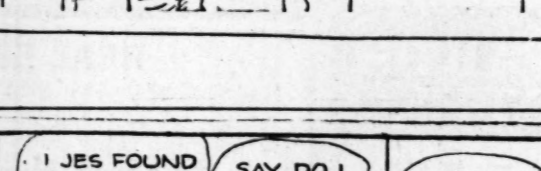

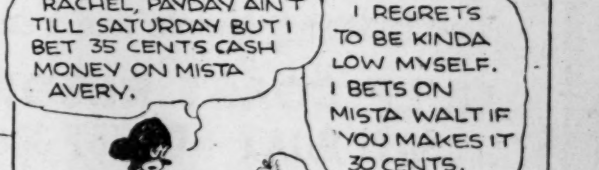

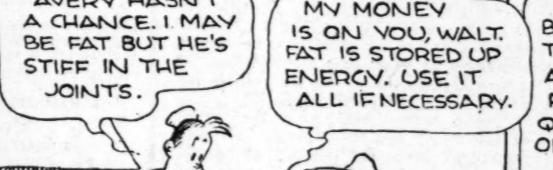

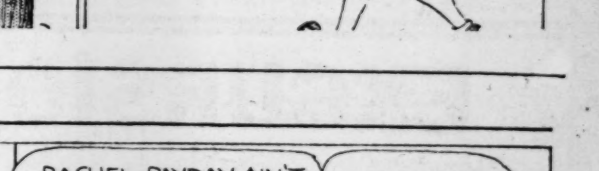

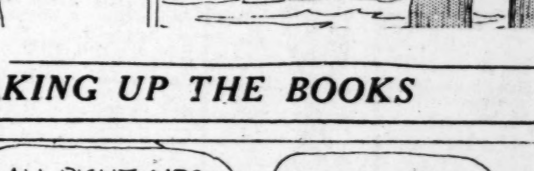

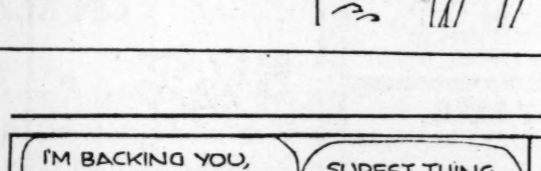

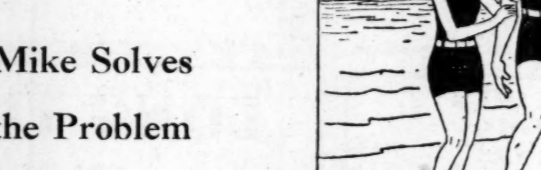

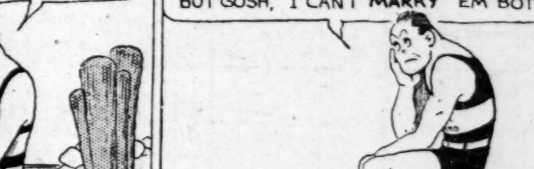

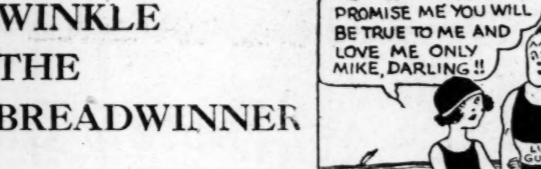

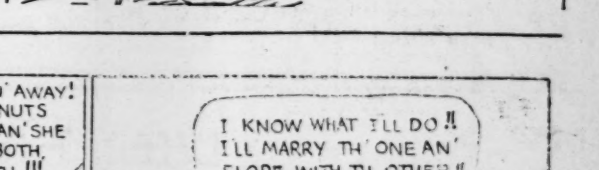

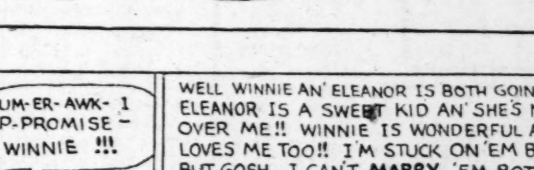

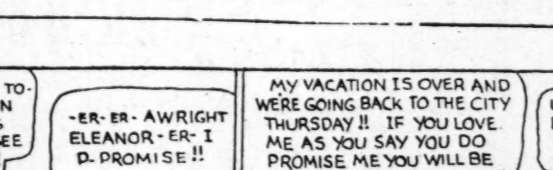

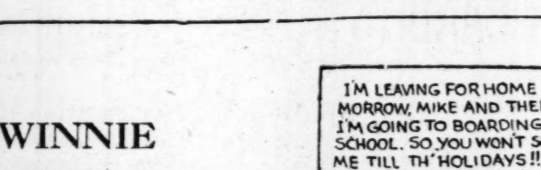

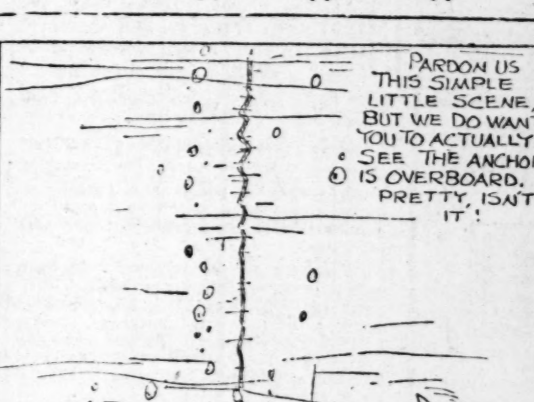

The dog barked to the door, still facing his enemy. Crook remained crouched in his corner. Then, as the canine leaped to the ground, a third figure entered the menagerie, that of Major Worthington.

"Can't get 'em together, eh?" he asked.
But Ned Wainright shook his head. "I'm not in the habit of giving up—in anything, Major," he answered with a little laugh—"either in lion training or—"

DAVIS WILL SPEAK NEXT FROM NOTES

Locust Valley, N. Y., August 24.—John W. Davis, in addressing the democratic state convention at Columbus, Ohio, next Tuesday, will make the first extemporaneous speech of his campaign.

The democratic presidential candidate has decided not to prepare his address in advance, but to strike out straight from the shoulder on what he conceives to be the principal issues on which his own and the republican parties differ.

Mr. Davis will leave here for Columbus tomorrow afternoon and will return Wednesday for further conference with those in charge of campaign organization before he starts for the west next Sunday on his first extended speaking tour.

The democratic nominee had a quiet day at his home here today. He read the full text of the statement at Augusta, Maine, of Charles G. Dawes, the republican vice presidential candidate, regarding the Ku Klux Klan, but declined to make any comment.

Committee Now Organized.
Washington, August 24.—Completion of the organization of the democratic national committee was announced today with the selection of the personnel of the speakers' bureau.

Representative James V. McClintock, of Oklahoma, was appointed chairman of the bureau; Mrs. Bernice S. Pyke, of Ohio, vice chairman, and John P. Costello, of Washington, D. C., assistant to the chairman.

Mosquito Hordes Cause Quarantine Upon Children

Chicago, August 24.—Hordes of mosquitoes descending upon North Shore and northwestern communities Sunday in such numbers that eleven golf courses were closed, the children of one town were ordered to remain indoors and some churches failed to hold services.

Within 12 hours the danger from the mosquitoes had become so acute that Dr. Harry W. Moore, health officer at Winnetka, issued an order declaring an emergency and directing children to remain at home until further notice. His order came after scores of youngsters had been stricken with fever, said to have resulted from the bite of the unwelcome visitors.

Wealthy residents of the fashionable North Shore communities met and donated thousands of dollars to a fund to drive the pests away. Winnetka residents and authorities are leading the fight. Sunday they placed orders for hundreds of sprays and insecticides and issued a call for volunteers spraying squads to start work Monday.

The Best Man.

Just before the wedding ceremony Pat came down very much disheveled. When asked what had happened he said:

"I met a man upstairs and when I asked him who he was he said, 'I'm the best man.' And I got very nervous."

Jonathan Davis in Hot Battle For Second Term in Kansas

Can Jonathan Davis repeat? That is the big political question in Kansas as its "dirt farmer" governor is organizing democratic cohorts to retain his gubernatorial seat for another term. His republican opponent is Ben S. Paulen (left), Fredonia banker and present lieutenant governor. Davis (right) carried Kansas, normally republican, by 100,000 votes two years ago. The battle promises to be warm.

Atlanta Spends $12,175,086 In Improvements in Year

Permanent public improvements built in 1923 cost the city of Atlanta $12,175,086, or more than half of the $24,350,172 spent for all purposes during the year, it was revealed in financial statistics issued Sunday by the United States department of commerce.

More than $2,000,000 of revenue receipts, exclusive of bond money, was spent on permanent public improvements in addition to more than $4,000,000 of bond money, the report disclosed.

Property taxes increased less than one-eighth as fast from 1922 to the end of 1923 as they had increased during the previous five years, the increase representing only the enhancement of real estate and the new buildings erected by private capital and subject to taxation.

Federal Report.
The following story of Atlanta's financial condition—based on a report of the United States department of commerce—was released Sunday by the Associated Press:

A total of $12,175,086, or 54.01 per cent, represents the total payments for expenses, interests, and outlays for the city government of Atlanta for the fiscal year ending December 31, 1923.

Out of this total, $5,049,455 represents the expenses of operating the general departments of the city government; $2,666,235, expenses of operating the public service enterprises, such as waterworks, markets and similar enterprises; $441,646, interest; and $6,018,150, for other purposes, including those for public service enterprises.

In 1922 the total payments for the city were $9,347,974, and in 1917 $3,908,705, a per capita of $22.70 in 1923, $10.48 in 1922, and $4.20 in 1917, respectively. The totals include all payments for the year, whether made from current revenues or from the proceeds of bond issues.

Total Revenue Receipts.

The total revenue receipts of Atlanta for the past year were $8,077,725, or $36.28 per capita. This represents $2,020,291 more than the total payments of the year exclusive of the payments for permanent improvements, but $4,097,361 less than the total payments including those for permanent improvements.

These payments in excess of revenue receipts were met from the proceeds of debt obligations. Property taxes represented 55.6 per cent of the total revenues for 1923, 58.4 per cent for 1922, and 62.2 per cent for 1917.

The increase in the amount of property taxes collected was 58.5 per cent from 1917 to 1922, and 6.9 per cent from 1922 to 1923. The per capita property taxes were $20.16 in 1923, $19.27 in 1922, and $14.02 in 1917.

Earnings of public service enterprises operated by the city represented 16.0 per cent of the total revenue for 1923, 14.7 per cent for 1922, and 13.1 per cent for 1917.

The city's indebtedness, as shown by floating debt less sinking fund assets) of Atlanta on December 31, 1923, was $9,836,050, or $44.12 per capita. In 1922 the per capita debt was $25.13, and in 1917, $22.48.

For 1923 the assessed valuation of property in Atlanta, subject to ad valorem taxes for city corporations was $202,904,179. The levy for all purposes for 1923 was $7,757,757, of which $4,349,913, or 56.4 per cent, was levied for the city corporations; $1,060,263, or 13.6 per cent, for the state; and $2,347,581, or 30.0 per cent for the county. The per capita tax levy for city, state and county was $34.93, the report shows.

Physician Writes How Maj. Imbrie Mobbed in Persia

Minneapolis, Minn., August 24.—A detailed story of the death of Major Robert Imbrie, acting American consul at Teheran, Persia, killed July 18 by a fanatic mob, has been sent by Dr. J. P. Hackett, his physician, in a letter to George K. End, Imbrie's "buddy" during the world war.

Dr. Hackett attended Major Imbrie in a Teheran hospital, where he was taken after being beaten unconscious by the mob which thought he had poisoned a sacred well. The crowd smashed its way into the hospital to witness the attack on Major Imbrie, who died, Dr. Hackett said.

"At a sacred well, near the center of the city," the letter said, "Muslims had been performing extraordinary feats of fanaticism for several days."

"It was reported that on Friday, July 18 (the holy day of the Mohameds), the exhibition at the sacred well would be especially interesting. Went to Well."

"Shortly before 10 a. m., Major Imbrie, with Melville, Sergeant, an American, and a native servant went to the well in an open carriage. The exact details as to what happened after they approached the well are not clear, but it is reported that a Mohammedan priest suddenly cried out, pointing at Major Imbrie: 'He has put poison in the well!'

"Major Imbrie and his companion returned to the carriage and drove rapidly toward the center of the city. They were followed by a crowd, headed by a number of native police and soldiers, repeating the cry raised at the well. A native on a motorcycle stopped the carriage and the increasing mob surrounded it."

"Major Imbrie vigorously defended himself. He was dragged from the carriage, but managed to run to the south side of the avenue, where he could better defend himself with his back to the wall. His companion was dragged to the north side, directly in front of the entrance to the military headquarters. Major Imbrie was driven to the center of the avenue again, where a Cossack officer dealt him a blow on the head with his sword."

"My servant, who was passing at the time, recognized the consul, ran to police headquarters nearby and several officers with a group of policemen rushed to the place, taking Major Imbrie to police headquarters, where the hospital is."

"The mob broke through the door, smashing it and the three windows in the place, tearing tiles from the floor, and again attacked Major Imbrie, raining many additional blows on his head."

"Although Major Imbrie sustained about 135 wounds and contusions, none of them was sufficiently serious to have caused his death. The shock was tremendous, however, and he survived it only until 2:30 in the afternoon."

The village grocer entered the grocery store and approaching a pile of muskmelons picked up one and sneeringly asked:

"Is this the largest apple you have?"

"Hey!" shouted the grocer, "put that grape down!"—The Progressive Grocer.

DARROW CLOSES ARGUMENT TODAY

Chicago, August 24.—Clarence S. Darrow, chief counsel defending Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., and Richard A. Loeb, was preparing tonight the wind-up of his closing argument, in which he asks the court to save his young clients from the gallows, the sentence asked by the state for murdering Robert Frank.

Meanwhile, in their cells in the county jail, Loeb and Leopold were speculating on the mental attitude they would take should the final verdict be death. Leopold declared that he would look upon death as he had looked upon life, "without prejudice and without the false comfort of a religious prop."

Loeb, on the other hand, wavered and wanted to "forget the gallows and talk about something pleasant."

In commenting upon a possible death sentence, Leopold declared:

"For almost 20 years I have schooled myself to look life in the face without prejudice and without the false comfort of any religious prop."

"If, after all that self-education, I should turn and run sniveling to the gallows when in the shadow of the religion, I should feel so contemptuous of myself that I would be glad to die anyway."

"If I am sentenced to hang, I hope to be not untrue to my life's philosophy. My actions have shocked a great many people. Well, they will get the last, transcending, supreme shock when I mount the scaffold for my last word to the world. I am not yet ready to say what this will consist in, but it will be dramatic, I assure you."

Loeb dismissed the discussion with the assertion that "if I should be committed to the penitentiary, I might be converted to some religion. At present, I am still interested in religion, but only as I am interested in myths and folklore. If I were to be hanged, however, there would be so little time left to live that I don't believe that I would have time to become converted to any religion. But let's forget the gallows and talk about something pleasant."

Mr. Darrow is expected, when he resumes his pleading before Judge John R. Caverly tomorrow, to continue his onslaught against the testimony of state witnesses. Following the veteran attorney will come Benjamin Bachrach, also of defense counsel. Probably Tuesday Prosecutor Robert E. Crowe is to close for the state.

charged with the enforcement of the law had been put in office or kept on the case.

There was never a candidate for high office who ever undertook so successfully to straddle a vital issue as General Dawes has done. No one can understand his position on the Klan from a careful reading of his speech. While he mildly criticizes it, he condones it.

"General Dawes said that the Klan was all right in Illinois, his own home state, and in Oklahoma, and by inference, in Maine. He demonstrated by that speech that he is a good militia general—a bespurred, swivel-chair hero. Instead of the fighting Irishman, Maria Dawes he is supposed to be."

A Farm Near Lakewood

This farm is said to be the finest dairy and truck farm in the State of Georgia; it is about one mile beyond Lakewood; fronts on Brown's Mill Road and Jonesboro Road; contains 207 acres. A branch of the Southern Railway touches the property. This is now operated as a dairy and the output is contracted for $1,400 a month; that shows the earning capacity of a good dairy near Atlanta.

This is the same tract of land that was approved by the Air Craft Board and Mayor Key as a landing field, and its purchase was recommended at a price of $75,000.
